new vistas

Effective control of seizures, social acceptance, and recognition of employment potential are providing new vistas for the majority of epileptic patients. Accurate diagnosis and adequate therapy, as in present-day management, can be expected more confidently than ever before to restore such patients to as full a life as is compatible with their condition.

DILANTIN° SODIUM

(diphenylhydantoin sodium, Parke-Davis)

Alone or in combination, DILANTIN continues as an anticonvulsant of choice for control of grand mal and of psychomotor seizures. In addition to its notable effectiveness, DILANTIN has little or no hypnotic effect.

DILANTIN Sodium is supplied in a variety of forms—including Kapseals® of 0.03 Gm. (½ gr.) and 0.1 Gm. (1½ gr.) in bottles of 100 and 1,000.

THORAZINE* can allay the suffering caused by the pain of SEVERE BURSITIS

The ataractic, tranquilizing action of 'Thorazine' can reduce the anguish and suffering associated with bursitis. 'Thorazine' acts not by eliminating the pain, but by altering the patient's reaction—enabling her to view her pain with a "serene detachment"... Howell and his associates¹ reported: "Several of [our patients] expressed the feeling that ['Thorazine'] put a curtain between them and their pain, so that whilst they were aware that the pain existed, they were not upset by it."

'Thorazine' should be administered discriminately and with the care to be observed with all serious medication. Consequently, it is important that the physician, before prescribing 'Thorazine', be fully conversant with the available literature.

Planning the Low-Purine Diet for a long run...

Imagination is essential to this diet since your patient may have to follow it for many years. These diet "do's" can show him how to use eggs, cheese, and milk—a trio of almost purine-free foods—to supply the major portion of his protein.

In these, the trio plays a solo-

Eggs baked in pimiento-flecked cheese sauce are hard to resist. Or, if your patient prefers, the sauce can be poured over hard-cooked eggs.

A casserole of eggplant and tomatoes layered alternately with ricotta or cottage cheese makes a satisfying entree.

Add a sprinkle of grated parmesan with a fine Italian hand.

Your patient may like his eggs poached in tomato juice. Then serve them in a soup bowl with a frill of chopped parsley on top.

In these, the trio plays accompaniment—

Ham 'n' egg rolls come hot or cold. For hot, roll a warm slice of ham around eggs that have been scrambled with a pinch of savory. For cold, roll ham around egg salad mixed with cottage cheese.

Oyster stew can be creamy without cream when the milk is bolstered with dry skim milk powder. A pinch of thyme and some chopped parsley add savor.

Broiled salmon or tuna-burgers nestle nicely in a nest of noodles. A slice of cheese on top adds color and broils to a bubbling brown.

These suggestions are only a few of the possible combinations of this versatile trio. And the adequate protein nutrition they make possible, plus a liberal intake of fluids, may help establish a regimen that will please you both.

Hydrospray

NASAL SUSPENSION

Anti-inflammatory—
Decongestant—Antibacterial

MAJOR ADVANTAGES: New synergistic anti-inflammatory, decongestant and antibacterial formula. High steroid content assures effective response.

Topically applied hydrocortisone in the apeutic concentrations has been shown to afford a significant degree of subjective and objective improvement in a high percentage of patients suffering from various types of rhinitis. Hydrospray provides Hydrocortone in a concentration of 0.1% plus a safe but potent decongestant, Propadrine, and a wide-spectrum antibiotic, Neomycin, with low sensitization potential. This combination provides a three-fold attack on the physiologic and pathologic manifestations of nasal allergies which results in a degree of relief that is often greater and achieved faster than when any one of these agents is employed alone. INDICATIONS: Acute and chronic rhinitis, vasomotor rhinitis, perennial rhinitis and polyposis.

SUPPLIED: In squeezable plastic spray bottles containing 15 cc. Hydrospray, each cc. supplying 1 mg. of Hydrocortone, 15 mg. of Propadrine Hydrochloride and 5 mg. of Neomycin Sulfate (equivalent to 8.5 mg. of neomycin base).

Pork in the Human Dietary

Pork MAY be looked upon as an important factor in America's general health and well-being. The average intake of pork in America is about 46 pounds of lean pork and 20 pounds of bacon and salt pork per person each year.1 But America's demand for pork goes further than taste appeal and deeper than mere statistics. Pork makes a valuable contribution to day-in-andday-out nutrition.

Pork rates among the foremost sources of thiamine. As a source of all other B vitamins and many essential minerals. such as iron and phosphorus, pork meat is considered an important dietary con-

Lean pork is virtually completely digestible. Its protein serves to promote growth and aid in the maintenance of tissue cells. Like all high quality protein, that of pork aids in the elaboration of protein hormones, enzymes, and antibodies.

Pork constitutes a valuable part of the daily diet (Table I), and also contributes importantly to the nutrition of the pregnant woman (Table II).

Pork and pork products have won America's favor by their unique combination of economy, palatability, and nutritional value.

JANUARY, 1956

Colorado - Montana - New Mexico Utah - Wyoming

EVERY physician who is conscious of his duties as a citizen should now be taking an active interest in a timely issue which the American Medical Association considers of

The Big Issue great importance — not only to the medical profession, but to all of the American people.

That issue is H.R. 7225, a bill passed by the United States House of Representatives last summer near the end of the Congressional session. This bill, known as the Social Security Amendments of 1955, was first rushed through the House Ways and Means Committee without public hearings. Then it was passed in the House, by a vote of 372 to 31, under a suspension of the rules which barred amendments and limited debate to forty minutes. The Senate Finance Committee, however, refused to take hasty action on a bill of such major importance. After hearing the many serious questions raised by Mrs. Hobby, then Secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the committee decided to hold extensive public hearings during the second session of the 84th Congress.

Just what is this legislation that appears to be so politically attractive to individuals with an eye on the 1956 elections? Why was the House majority leadership so determined to avoid open hearings and normal debate? Let's take a brief look at the main provisions of the bill.

This is the legislation which would lower the social security retirement age for women from 65 to 62; extend monthly benefits for permanently and totally disabled children beyond the age of 18; expand compulsory social security coverage to all self-employed professional groups except physicians, and raise social security taxes over and above the increases already scheduled for the next twenty years. Those provisions alone demand careful study of their effects on the philosophy, scope and financial stability of our social security system.

The most controversial section of the bill, however, is the one which would make permanently and totally disabled persons eligible to receive their social security retirement benefits at age 50 instead of 65. It is this section which is of particular concern to the medical profession. It is of far greater concern than the question of voluntary or compulsory coverage of physicians under the social security system. That is a separate issue which we are not discussiing in this editorial. The plan for a national system of permanent and total disability benefits has far more serious implications for medicine and the nation.

It raises questions such as these: Is there any real need for a federal program? What are the facts on permanent and total disability? Won't this duplicate or overlap existing programs of assistance and rehabilitation? What effect will cash handouts have on a patient's incentive to be rehabilitated? Won't this extend federal control over physicians?—and, finally—How will this affect the future of medical practice? Will this lead, step by step, to the lowering and eventual elimination of the age-50 eligibility requirement; then, cash benefits for the dependents of those who are permanently and totally disabled; then, a temporary disability benefits program; then, cash benefits or direct government payments for hospital or medical costs, and then, ultimately, a full-fledged system of government health insurance?

These are but a few of the many grave questions which already have been raised concerning this legislation. As physicians, we must be concerned over the medical aspects of the problem. As citizens, we also must be concerned over the trends and implications in the never-ending expansion of our social security system. The minority report of the House Ways and Means Committee expressed it this way:

"We do not believe that our committee has discharged its obligation to either the Congress or to the American people by its brief and closed-door consideration of this vital legislation. We have sought to point out the grave social and economic implications of the bill. We have dwelt at some length with the staggering ultimate costs of this developing program, because we do not believe that either the Congress or the public has any conception of its magnitude."

Our social security system now has reached the point where any further changes may have a profound influence on the nation's economic, social and political future. The time has come to face up to the question of just what social security should accomplish and just where it should stop. The A.M.A. strongly urges that the social security issue be taken out of the arena of votecatching politics; that there be an objective, thorough study of social security in all its present and future aspects, and that the facts and realities emerging from such a study be used as the basis for a sound national decision on this vital issue. It especially protests precipitate action on the complex question of disability without thorough investigation of alternative mechanisms.

In our opinion, that is a reasonable, responsible policy that deserves the moral and intellectual support of every physician.

AMONG recent "Doctor" articles in popular magazines is one in the December 13 issue of "Look" entitled "War Among the Doctors." It discusses the question of Specialist's Fees surgeons' fees and income compared with those of general practitioners. It states that the lifetime work of a surgeon earns a half million dollars more than that of a general practitioner and that the G.P.'s want a new system of fees. The latter have not implied they wish to attempt operations beyond their skill nor submit to fee splitting, unnecessary operations, or ghost surgery.

The A.M.A. appointed a committee headed by Dr. Stanley S. Truman of Texas to study the problem and recommended changes. These committeemen decided that money is the root of all medical evils. In response to their conclusions, an executive of the A.M.A. stated, "If I had the magical power to cut all surgeons' fees in half, I believe I would be curing most of medicine's own Furthermore, comment was made about the long postgraduate education of surgeons, greater responsibility, heavy physical and emotional strain, et cetera. No one denies that surgeons should enjoy a somewhat higher income, but many individuals believe it shouldn't average twice as much as that of the G.P.—which it does.

The physician's idealism should preclude preoccupation with money, but ultimate economic insecurity is generally a greater threat with him than in the case of retired individuals in the business world. His bills to the patients at times seem to indicate that the doctor's sympathy was not entirely genuine. Once in health again, the patient's confidence and gratitude may be replaced by dislike of doctors—particularly if he resents the bill. These facts, among others, are preying upon our colleagues' minds.

Further comment is made in the article regarding specialization and certification of specialists. Critics claim that the Boards are autocratic, and they are not official, that is, a doctor need not be certified to call himself a specialist. Thoughtful patients frequently wonder if the physician is a trained specialist or only says he is. One patient said, "He ain't no angel and he is entitled to a decent fee. Trouble is not everybody can afford to pay it."

Above are impressions of what patients are saying and what they are reading, and also what some of our colleagues are thinking. They are powerful factors which we cannot and must not ignore. While we are meditating, let us be reminded to abide by the plaque supplied by the A.M.A. for the price of $1.00. It should be conspicuously placed in the office of every practitioner:

"To All My Patients:

"I invite you to discuss frankly with me any questions regarding my services or my fees.

"The best medical service is based on a friendly mutual understanding between doctor and patient."

AN EDITORIAL in the New Jersey Medical Journal a few months ago reminded us of the theme brought out by the popular motion picture, "The High and the Mighty."

High and Mighty?

You will recall that many personality types were represented among the passengers on the distressed plane in that movie. While high above the Pacific and hundreds of miles from land, the plane had become almost disabled, and for several hours it looked as though they were their last hours on earth for all aboard. During the crisis, the true color and characteristics of people predominated-for all were apparently face to face with the Grim Reaper. Money, social position, titles, fame and families could neither change impending fate nor buy escape therefrom. People were cut down to size and equality as they shared alike the most valuable of all commodities, and perhaps their last, of health and life. Fundamental qualities and personal traits were shown without the veneer imparted by security and easy life. Finally, after safe landing, each passenger promptly returned to Cadillacs, mink coats, prides, prejudices, and selfishness. Gratitude, thankfulness, and even prayers were put aside-perhaps to be conjured up another day in case of crisis! One is reminded also of the war slogan, "There are no atheists in foxholes." The New Jersey editorial was entitled "Illness the Leveller." It is quoted

"The president of the company and his janitor are on the same plane when each lies on his belly, his buttocks in the air, awaiting the proctoscope. When a woman is swallowing a stomach tube or receiving a colposcope, then, truly, Judy O'Grady and the Colonel's lady are sisters under the skin.

"Illness is a leveller not only becausewith their pants down-all men are equal, but also because fear wipes out arrogance and crumbles dignity. Faced with fear of pain, fear of death, fear of disability, all men react according to their temperament and not according to social caste or income

"So it is-or it should be-that physicians make the best apostles of democracy and the poorest supporters of a 'master race' thesis or a 'class dictatorship.' For, as every physician knows, there are no commissioned officers in the ranks of the frightened, the pained, the crippled or even in the ranks of the undressed. In that army we are, indeed, all brethren and sistern."

Perhaps this is one reason why we are amply rewarded for humanitarian service in the practice of medicine. It is what people are made of inside that counts, not what they look like or what they possess. We learn first hand what really makes them

Cancer of the Prostate*

Elmer Hess, M.D. ERIE, PENNSYLVANIA

IT IS the special function of the general practitioner to diagnose carcinoma of the prostate when it is a curable disease. In my own clinic I have only seen two cases in the past ten years that came in sufficiently early to have total prostatectomy and in both of those cases total prostatectomy failed to cure. The disease was even then too far advanced. The only time you can cure carcinoma of the prostate is when it begins, and it may stay dormant as a small hard nodule in the posterior lobe of the prostate for a period of anywhere from six months to ten years before it becomes a disease that is incurable. The responsibility for early diagnosis of carcinoma of the prostate rests entirely with the man whom I consider the backbone of all American medicinethe general practitioner. He is the man who can make the diagnosis early, can refer the patient at once, and can assure the patient that in 90 per cent of the cases the patient has not only a survival chance but a cure chance.

I've gone around the country on a good many occasions and asked general medical audiences, "Do you do a rectal examination when you do a complete physical on every male?" and I am amazed at the few numbers of hands that go up that admit that they do. You have an eye in the end of your index finger. No physical examination is complete without that index finger with its eye inserted into the male rectum, particularly if that individual is over 40 years of age. Because from 40 on, the carcinomatous nodule starts and develops. And you might just as well take a gun and hold it to some man's head and pull the trigger as not to do a rectal examination on him if he's 40 years of age or older because you may be missing the opportunity to give that man health and life. I once made the statement in Chicago at an orthopedic meeting that an orthopedic surgeon should never nail a hip until he had put his finger in the rectum to see if he was dealing with a carinoma of the prostate because I have seen a great many pathological fractures of the neck of the femur nailed by orthopedic surgeons. The treatment resulted in complete failure because it had not been diagnosed that that hip was a metastatic lesion secondary to prostatic carcinoma. One of the greatest orthopedic surgeons that I have ever known had the temerity to get up and say, "I never put my finger in anbody's rectum. I wouldn't know what I felt if I did." I had a chance to get back at him shortly after that and told him if he cared to come down to the clinic, I could teach him in ten minutes how to do a prostatic examination and that I would show him plenty of prostates where he couldn't fail to make a diagnosis.

There is one place where you might go wrong making your rectal examination. I would say that 90 per cent of the early carcinomas can be picked up by the general practitioner by simple rectal examination. You might go wrong in an old inflammatory prostate where there have been many and multiple prostatic abscesses which have ruptured and healed. Sometimes that old inflammatory prostate feels like the hard prostate of carcinoma. Even then you have very little difficulty in making the differential diagnosis. So the responsibility for curing carcinoma of the prostate doesn't rest with the urologist at all. It rests with the general practitioner; it rests with the internist; it rests with every man who sees that patient and who does a complete physical upon him.

Now, a word or two about the treatment of prostatic carcinoma. In the first place, the only treatment for carcinoma of the prostate in that early stage is total prostatectomy and you can do a total prostatectomy either perineally or retropubically. When you feel that nodule, it isn't sufficient just to feel the hard nodule. You should perform biopsy and be prepared to go on and operate if the biopsy proves it to be carcinomous. Then you will cure many of these patients.

But you must remember that carcinoma of the prostate is also a very slow disease in many patients. It develops slowly and progresses slowly and many and many a patient will live five, ten, and even fifteen years with a slowly developing carcinoma of the prostate, so long as he is not obstructed, if you do nothing for it. Sometimes you attribute that longevity to your therapy. But I've seen many of the cases go for long periods of time without any therapy. Then I've seen others that destroy life quickly.

If Huggins and his research is correct the androgen-the over-stimulation of the prostatic epithelium by over-production of androgens-is the probable cause of carcinoma of the prostate. So we have tried to find out where all these various androgens are coming from. You've all seen the mannish development of the female with the male distribution of hair, the hypertrophied clitoris, due to tumors of the adrenal gland and we know what a large percentage of the androgens come from the adrenal probably stimulated by the pituitary. We also know that if you take out the seminiferous structures of the gonad in the male that you will destroy production of the androgens by the gonad and that if you have a welldeveloped carcinoma of the prostate that the carcinoma will regress if you take out the gonads. You also know that it will again recur. Recently we have had some of the reports from Huggins who has done bilateral adrenalectomies in these patients with the substituting of cortone after the adrenalec-tomy has been done. He had noted regressions in progressive prostatic carcinoma as a result of adrenal ectomy.

I have never personally seen x-ray or radium of any service in a well-developed carcinoma of the prostate. I have only seen two patients in ten years that weren't well advanced cases of carcinoma of the prostate. We don't see the early case; the urologist doesn't see them. So we've got to think of therapy from our point of view—from the urologist's point of view. Can we cure these cases with inoperable carcinoma of the prostate? Yes, the miracle happens occasionally. I think I have the first patient that was ever treated by cortone. I'd like to tell you about him because I think it's a miracle.

This man came to me in the late fifties with a well-developed carcinoma of the prostate that had advanced well beyond the capsule. It had invaded the trigone of the bladder; he was obstructed. The diagnosis was easy and we did a transure-thral resection to give him a voiding channel. Realizing that there was nothing we could do to save his life, I asked him to report back once a month and I never saw him again for five years.

Five years later he came into the office. I'd forgotten all about him. He said he'd passed a little blood one morning and it had alarmed him and he'd come back. He had had one of the most anaplastic carcinomas of the prostate I'd ever seen according to the pathologist's report, and I couldn't believe my finger, the eye in my finger, nor my own eyes because I could find no evidence of carinoma of the prostate. Per rectum his prostate was smooth and soft and pliable, movable; it wasn't fixed; his bladder neck wasn't fixed. I cystoscoped him; cystoscope entered and could go in almost any direction. He was not obstructed. I looked in and could recognize nothing that looked even remotely like carcinoma, but I saw a vein that was bleeding. I sparked it and that was an end of his hemorrhage.

Then I became curious as to what had happened to him and couldn't believe my eyes upon seeing what I knew had been seen under the microscope five years previously. Asked what had happened he said, "Well, I don't know, Dr. Hess." I talked to his wife. We hadn't told him the prognosis that we'd given him. She said, "Dr. Hess, I don't think he ever had cancer." And I said, "I wouldn't either if I hadn't seen his slides just a minute or two ago. I am positive I didn't make a mistake and I'm positive the pathologist didn't."

Now here's what happened: He had developed asthma. I would have said had one of my prostate carcinomas developed asthma, "Ah, ah, he has metastasis in his lungs." His family doctor had been sold a bill of goods by the detail man-the chap who tells you and me how to practice medicine, if we tell the truth-on cortone. And he had cortone for his asthma about the first year it came out. He has been taking cortone ever since to prevent recurrence of asthma and it apparently has cured his carcinoma of the prostate. Believe it or not. It's a miracle as far as I'm concerned. But it does show definitely that you must throw the book at carcinoma and if you do you may get somewhere and the occasional miracle happens in the inoperable case.

So let's outline how we would treat a case of carcinoma of the prostate that we would consider inoperable, for it's the practical application of our experience that makes exchange of our experiences and ideas so valuable. First, we would decide is there any residual urine; is there obstruction to the outflow of urine. If there isn't any obstruction to the outflow of urine, no surgery unless it's for biopsy. If you perform biopsy transuretherally upon a carcinoma of the prostate that you can feel rectally, you may get a perfectly normal prostatic hypertrophy in your sections because it takes a long time for the prostatic carcinoma to break through from the posterior lamella and present itself at the uretheral level. You may get a perfectly normal biopsy transuretherally. The only dependable way to perform biopsy is perineally. You can do it with perfect safety and under local anesthesia. When a patient comes in whom we consider inoperable, we take a series of x-ray pictures to see if we can find any metastasis. Then the first thing we do with that carcinoma of the prostate is to refuse it surgery unless, as I say, there is obstruction. If there is obstruction, we do a transuretheral resection. Then we save orchiectomy for bony metastasis with pain. We used to do orchiectomy immediately. We've quit that because we've had some unpleasant experiences. Let me cite one to you.

I had a young man 50 years of age upon whom I didn't even want to operate. He had a median bar, no residual urine, and what looked like an inflammatory sclerotic bladder neck; he was voiding every fifteen or twenty minutes and we tried over-dilation. It didn't do him any good. He was too young, in my opinion, for cancer and finally he coaxed me into doing a transurethal resection much against my own judgment. Imagine my amazement when the pathologic report came back—anaplastic carcinoma. We immediately advised orchiectomy. In this particular case we castrated him.

There is a similar case in which we didn't castrate the patient; we did a total prostatectomy, but the end result was just the same. We immediately castrated the first man and he is still a millstone around my neck. He said, "If I had known that I could never again have any marital relationships at my age, I'd have died of my disease." Gentlemen, you have to be very careful how you castrate a man under 65 years of age because marital relationships are important and the only way we can give this man any marital satisfaction at all is to give him a substitution pellet of testosterone every once in a while. Then he can have marital relationships for about a week or ten days. He lives in mental agony. You are obliged to take the mental attitude of these people into consideration, too.

Now why do an adrenalectomy on these patients when you can accomplish the same thing medically? You can do a medical adrenalectomy by using cortone. I know nothing about the injection of isotopes and radiated gold such as Reuben Flocks is doing over in Iowa City, use of isotopes, nor anything about the cobalt bomb except that we have seen a number of patients who have been treated by the bomb without any skin reactions whatsoever but who have had their bladders, prostates, and rectums completely melted away from its effects. These people were going to die anyhow and at their own request were treated with it after all details had been explained to them.

On the other hand the isotopes, the bomb, and the radiated gold injected into the prostate through a suprapubic incision are still all much in the experiment stage and we do not know what the end results of this therapy is going to be.

Above everything else, the important thing in the treatment of any type of carcinoma is that in your relationship with your patient you must be a psychiatrist of sorts; you must get his mental point of view. You have to take into consideration whether he can "take it" and if he can't "take it" you must not give it to him. But you must guide him. And if there is any place in medicine where spiritual values are important it's in the treatment of inoperable carcinoma anywhere in the body. Because without spiritual values, it is difficult for us to take these people over that last great hurdle in some comfort when all of our science fails!

Eosinophilic Pneumonopathy Syndrome Joseph S. Clutter, M.D.

PUEBLO, COLORADO

THE combination of pulmonary infiltration and eosinophilia has been noted in various conditions and described under many different names. The most frequently described has been Loeffler's syndrome. This syndrome is characterized by transient pulmonary infiltration with eosinophilia. A benign clinical course, brief duration, and migrating infiltrations in the chest roentgenogram are usually emphasized1. The shadows in the chest x-ray film may be located in any part of the lung, and may be large or small, homogeneous or spotty, single or multiple, bilateral or unilateral. Symptomatology may vary from no symptoms to severe cough with malaise, slight fever, generalized aching and anorexia. Physical findings are variable also, ranging from none to asthmatic wheezing and musical rales. Blood eosinophilia may reach 80 per cent, and pleural, pericardial and peritoneal effusions containing many eosinophiles have occurred2.

Most recent authors^{3,4,5}, however, tend to feel that the syndrome as originally described by Loeffler is actually of greater complexity and variety. Original concepts Ascaris lumbricoides, Necator americanus, Distoma, Trichinella, larvae causing cutaneous helminthiasis, Strongyloides stercoralis and the mite, Acarina. There have been of readily definable entities are changing as more protean cases are encountered. Some of the other names and varieties of this syndrome are tropical eosinophilia6, eosinophilic pneumonia, allergic pulmonary infiltrations, allergic pneumonia7, eosinophilic pneumonopathy syndrome8,5, pulmonary infiltration with eosinophilia4, bronchial asthma, polyarteritis nodosa and some intestinal infestations. The cases documented as tropical eosinophilia are usually characterized by a more severe illness and a more protracted course. A dry, hacking cough, particularly at night, with anorexia, malaise, and a fever of 100 to 101 degrees F. are usually present9. Wheezing, expiratory dyspnea and temporary relief by epinephrine all may suggest an asthmatic attack. Splenomegaly is frequently reported as occurring in about 50 per cent of the cases. These cases are frequently ascribed to parasitic infestation of numerous types, such as those caused by Endamoeba histolytica, Ascaris lumbricoides, Necator americanus, Distoma, Trichinella, larvae causing cutaneous helminthiasis, Strongyloides stercoralis several reports noting the efficacy of arsenotherapy in the treatment of tropical eosinophilia⁵.

In dealing with these conditions, a search should be made for accompanying disease of known or suspected allergic origin, especially bronchial asthma, angioneurotic edema, hay fever, eczema, migraine headache, serum sickness, rheumatic fever, rheumatoid arthritis and collagen-vascular disease⁴. The differential diagnosis in eosinophilic pneumonopathy should include eosinophilic leukemia, Hodgkin's disease, polyarteritis nodosa (sometimes an accompanying diagnosis), pulmonary tuberculosis, fat embolism, infectious mononucleosis, septicemia and pneumonia of rheumatic, bronchial, lobar, aspiration or viral type⁴.

Nearly all authors conclude that there is usually a marked allergic element in the pathogenesis of these syndromes. Wilson and Alexander¹⁰ suggest that hypersensitive reactions may be reversible as is Loeffler's syndrome or nonreversible as is polyarteritis nodosa. There can be transition from the former to the latter in some instances. It has been hypothesized that any tissue might be involved in the allergic response and that the degree of involvement and the shock tissue affected determines the clinical syndrome11. Antigen-antibody interaction releases a histamine-like substance, causing increased vascular permeability and resultant edema in the affected tissue11.

The case report that follows was felt to be worthy of presentation because of several unusual features and because it reaffirms the effectiveness of hydrocortisone (and later in the course of the illness, prednisone) in treating a severe case of eosinophilic pneumonopathy. Also, this case is felt to be a good one to use as an example of eosinophilic penumonopathy, as it has features characteristic of many of the syndromes included in this larger group of disorders more recently grouped together and termed eosinophilic pulmonary pneumonopathy or pulmonary infiltration with eosinophilia.

CASE REPORT

The patient, when first seen, was already in the hospital. A 54-year-old white male boilerroom worker, he had been admitted two months previously because of severe cough which had been present about five months and had steadily increased in severity. He had also noted progressive weakness, dyspnea on exertion, vague generalized joint pains, and pleuritic pains in the left chest. He had suffered a perforated duodenal ulcer two years previously which was surgically repaired and had been well controlled by diet and antacids since. He had never used tobacco or alcohol and other than the duodenal ulcer and occasional bouts of mild hay fever, his past history was not remarkable. He had spent his entire life in Colorado except for short trips to neighboring states.

He had been admitted to the hospital by his family physician who assumed that he had tuberculosis on admission to the hospital because of the report by the radiologist on the chest x-ray taken on September 20, 1954 (Fig. 1). This film showed a fairly dense infiltration in the region of the left upper lobe with a small collection of fluid in the left costophrenic angle and a few scattered fibrotic strands, particularly in the right infraclavicular region. However, sputum studies were reported as negative for acid-fast bacilli by smear and subsequently by culture on four separate occasions. Nevertheless, on September 23, 1954, he was started on a regime of streptomycin, 1 gm. intramuscularly every third day, isonicotinic acid hydrazid (isoniazid) 100 mgs. twice daily and paraaminosalicylic acid (PAS) 2 gm. three times daily.

His condition gradually deteriorated on this regime. The cough increased markedly and the chest pain became more generalized and more continuous. The streptomycin was discontinued on October 4, 1954, but the isoniazid and PAS were continued. His ulcer symptoms recurred, but were moderately well controlled by diet, antacids and antispasmodics. He had remained essentially afebrile throughout the entire hospital course, his temperature never going above 100 degrees F. orally.

The patient was first seen by the author in consultation on October 15, 1954, and then was seen daily thereafter. At that time he appeared acutely and critically ill. He was very dyspneic and emaciated. He was very apprehensive, and increased sweating was evident. His color was cyanotic with a gravish cast to the skin. There were no skin eruptions. Examination of the eyes, fundi, nose, ears, throat and thyroid gland was without noteworthy change except that both nasal passages were moderately narrowed by swelling of the nasal mucosa and several polyps were seen. There was no palpable enlargement of any lymph glands. The chest was symmetrical, and its expansion was adequate and equal. The percussion note throughout the lungs was normal. Loud rhonchi and wheezes were heard over the entire chest and many moist râles were heard in both lung bases. There were no signs of consolidation. Examination of the heart was not remarkable and the blood pressure was 110 systolic with 70 diastolic. Examinations of the abdomen, genitalia, rectum, extremities, and neurological system revealed no noteworthy change. It was felt that tuberculosis was unlikely and that eosinophilic pneumonopathy was a likely diagnosis.

The admission blood count revealed an eosinophilia of 57 per cent. There was a total white blood cell count of 22,100 with 25 per cent segmented polymorphonuclear cells and 18 per cent lymphocytes. There was 13.4 grams of hemoglobin and 5,220,000 red blood cells. The eosinophilia was persistent on repeated counts, ranging from 44 to 57 per cent. A sternal bone marrow examination was done with the following report: "Smears of the aspirated bone marrow material show a good representation of both young and old forms in the red and white series. There is a preponderance of eosinophiles in the granulocytic series but almost all of these are fairly mature. Unusually large numbers of young forms in any one of the series are not apparent. Bizarre cellular forms and extrinsic cellular forms are not apparent. Diagnosis-bone marrow showing relatively mature eosinophilia." Urinalyses repeated at intervals were all within normal limits. As stated previously, sputum smears and cultures were repeatedly negative for acid-fast bacilli; however, many eosinophiles were seen in the sputum on several different occasions.

In order to rule out tuberculosis, skin tests were done with first and then second strength purified protein derivative (PPD) which were both negative. A trichinella skin was negative. A biopsy was obtained from the left gastrocnemius muscle and was reported as negative for evidences of trichinosis or polyarteritis nodosa with "good vascularity and without any cellular infiltration." Repeated stool examinations were negative for ova or parasites.

The admission chest x-ray on September 20, 1954, has already been noted (Fig 1). A gastrointestinal series of x-rays was done and showed a persistent clover-leaf deformity in the duodenum and the duodenal bulb was moderately tender. The radiologist considered this as a "moderately active chronic duodenal ulcer." An electrocardiogram was within normal limits. An ENT consultant reported many nasal polypi and allergic rhinitis.

In spite of the dodenal ulcer history and x-ray findings, the patient's condition was deteriorating so rapidly that hydrocortisone 20 mgs. every four hours was started on October 20. The PAS and isoniazid were stopped on this same date. The chest x-ray at this time (Fig. 2) showed an increase in infiltration and the amount of the pleuritic fluid as compared with that on admission to the hospital. The patient gradually began to improve after the hydrocortisone was started, showing less dyspnea, wheezing and cough. The rhonchi and râles heard in the chest gradually diminished in intensity.

A chest x-ray taken on October 28, one week after starting hydrocortisone, showed slight improvement and slight clearing of the infiltration in the left upper lobe. The percentage of eosinophiles had dropped to 5 per cent on this same date. The total white blood cell count at this time was 7,800 with 72 per cent segmented polymorphonuclear cells, 21 per cent lymphocytes and 2 per cent monocytes. The dosage of hydrocortisone was gradually dropped in a stepwise manner. The patient continued to improve clinically, although he was difficult to handle at times due to a multitude of functional symptoms. On November 4, the percentage of eosinophiles had risen to 11 per cent. However, clinical improvement was maintained. Surprisingly the duodenal ulcer symptoms improved as the respiratory symptoms improved. There apparently was no aggravation of the duodenal ulcer by the hydrocortisone. On November 15 the percentage of eosinophiles was 23 in a total count of 10,300 white blood cells. The patient had been receiving only 5 mgs. of hydrocortisone four times a day for the previous four days. The chest x-ray taken on November 15 showed some regression of the improvement noted on October 28 with a few infiltrations in the region of the left hilum. Because the signs and symptoms of respiratory difficulty showed a gradual increase and because of the changes in the chest x-ray taken on November 15, the dose of hydrocortisone was pushed upward to 80 mgs. daily. Following this increase in the dosage of hydrocortisone, clinical improvement was more gradual than it had been initially. The dosage was left at 80 mgs. daily for five days and was then gradually tapered downwards and finally discontinued on November 29, 1954. The patient was discharged on December 1, 1954, almost completely asymptomatic.

The patient was seen at home one week later on December 8, 1954, because of wheezing, cough, and a temperature of 102 degrees F. orally. He had developed symptoms of a "cold" the day before. He was readmitted to the hospital on December 8, 1954. Scattered rhonchi were again heard in the chest but no râles were heard. Otherwise the physical examination was not different from that on the first admission. The chest x-ray on December 9, 1954 (Fig. 3), surprisingly showed some improvement compared to that of November 15, 1954. The eosinophile count was 22 per cent in a total white blood cell count of 9,200. Hydrocortisone was restarted in a dosage of 120 mgs. in twenty-four hours. The day following admission there was a good deal of purulent nasal discharge and the patient complained of much pain in the region of the antral sinuses and an ENT consultant made a diagnosis of acute antral sinusitis. For this reason, penicillin-streptomycin was given in a dosage of 400,000 units and 0.5 gm. respectively every twelve hours for three days. Isuprel was given by aerosol inhalation followed by aerosolized crystalline penicillin, 100,000 units three times a day. Symptomatic improvement was prompt. However, the eosinophile count was 34 per cent on December 13. On December 15 the chest x-ray showed clearing of the basilar congestion and infiltration, and a sputum examination showed no eosinophiles present. Clinical improvement was gradual and sustained. On December 21 the percentage of eosinophiles was 11 per cent. The aerosol inhalations were stopped on December 21. The chest x-ray on December 30 (Fig. 4) was entirely clear and on December 31 the eosinophiles numbered 10 per cent. The hydrocortisone was very gradually lowered in dosage and entirely stopped on January 3, 1955. The patient was discharged asymptomatic on January 8, 1955.

He has been seen in the office at intervals since discharge from the hospital. He has had one episode of dyspnea and asthmatic breathing following a dust storm, at which time his percentage of eosinophiles was 60 per cent. This episode promptly responded to a short course of prednisone in a dosage of 30 mgs. daily. It was not necessary to hospitalize the patient for this episode and a chest x-ray was not obtained. His eosinophile count has remained around 10 to 12 per cent since this attack, and he has been free of respiratory symptoms and has been gradually gaining weight.

Discussion

Eosinophilic pneumonopathy syndrome as a diagnostic term was introduced by Apley

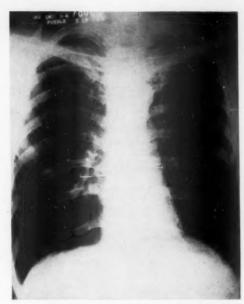

Fig. 4. Film taken December 30 showing complete clearing of all of the pulmonary infiltrations and resorption of the pleural fluid.

and Grant to describe the various conditions that present the combination of eosinophilia and pulmonary lesions8. It was felt that this term best described the case presented here since its manifestations overlap the usual descriptions of Loeffler's syndrome, tropical eosinophilia, and bronchial asthma. An attempt to classify it as being specifically one or the other meets with difficulty. It resembled Loeffler's syndrome in that it occurred in a native North American who had never been in the tropics, and that there was little or no fever for most of the course and that pulmonary infiltration with eosinophilia was present. It resembled tropical eosinophilia in that its course was somewhat chronic, the symptoms were quite severe and there was typical asthmatic breathing and bronchitis. It resembled bronchial asthma by its pulmonary signs and symptoms.

An unusual feature in this case was the administration of PAS initially along with streptomycin. Several observers^{12,13} have reported the occurrence of Loeffler's syndrome due to sensitivity to PAS. Although this case had pulmonary infiltration and eosinophilia on admission, he did become much worse following the administration of PAS and streptomycin. One could speculate about the possibility that sensitivity to PAS may have aggravated the eosinophilic pneumonopathy syndrome in this case. The response to hydrocortisone was somewhat slower than that described in other cases reported in the literature¹⁴.

It was of considerable interest and relief to the author to note that the hydrocortisone did not increase the patient's ulcer symptoms or signs. It was with considerable misgivings in this regard that the hydrocortisone was instituted in the first place. There have been numerous reports in the literature regarding the aggravating and apparently causative effect of cortisone and hydocortisone on peptic ulcers 15,16.

As more cases resembling this syndrome are reported perhaps a more clear-cut clinical picture can be differentiated. Until that time it would seem reasonable to include all cases presenting eosinophilia and pulmonary infiltration under the general term the eosinophilic pneumonopathy syndrome. This syndrome, then, following Ensign's classification5, should be subdivided into three major categories: those of unknown etiology, those of known etiology, and those associated with other diseases. A classification could be proposed as follows: (1) unknown etiology -Loeffler's syndrome, tropical eosinophilia, and bronchial asthma; (2) known etiologyparasitic infestations and plant pollens; and (3) associated with other diseases—eosinophilic leukemia, sarcoidosis, pulmonary tuberculosis, and Hodgkin's disease.

Summary and Conclusions

A fairly large group of clinical manifestations of widely varying severity and duration all exhibit transitory pulmonary infiltrations and eosinophilia. At one extreme is Loeffler's syndrome, the mildest, and polyarteritis nodosa, the severest, is at the other extreme, with tropical eosinophilia somewhere in between. Until their etiologies can be better determined, it is thought that it is better to group these cases together under a descriptive term such as eosinophilic pneumonopathy.

A case report is presented that was characterized by eosinophilic leukocytosis, pulmonary infiltrations, asthmatic symptoms and a rather prolonged course. This case in some ways resembled Loeffler's syndrome, tropical eosinophilia, and bronchial asthma, but it best fits into the broad picture encompassed by the term eosinophilic pneumonopathy syndrome. This illness was effectively treated with hydrocortisone and later prednisone.

Counseling as an Adjunct to Medical Services* William A. Garrison, M.A.

DENVER

HE tremendous growth of counseling services since the end of World War II is potent evidence of the need for such services. Public schools and collegiate institutions now recognize them as an integral and necessary part of an effective educational program. There are many persons in the general public who are now taking advantage of counseling services before they con-cal health are essentials for the over-all health and well-being of the individual. Physicians, who recognize that the total health picture of their patients may be dependent on satisfactory vocational and educational adjustment, may now refer their patients to the Career Counseling Center at the University of Denver for vocational and educational counseling.

At the Career Counseling Center, the client goes through the counseling process cooperatively with a trained counseling psychologist. He is first properly oriented to the process of counseling so that he has a complete picture of how it is organized and what he can expect from it. This does not involve "crystal-ball gazing" or magical formulae for the solution of vocational and educational problems, but is a combination of logical thinking and scientifically validated procedures which assist the individual in considering various problems in his educational and vocational life, and the alternatives for their solution.

Following the orientation to the counseling process, the counseling psychologist in cooperation with the client, chooses a series or battery of tests and inventories which seems appropriate to this client's needs. This battery will usually assess factors of interest, personality, intelligence or mental ability, aptitudes and achievement. The vocational interest inventory gives the client an opportunity to express his preference for certain activities which may later be related to vocational choice. Inventories of personality help explore the client's concept of himself in terms of certain presented situational factors. Tests of intelligence or general mental ability are either of the group test variety or those of individual administration. By giving such measures, the client becomes familiar with his basic ability which might affect the choice of the level of occupation considered. Tests of aptitude measure potentialities for accomplishment in such fields as clerical work, mechanical work, engineering and design work, etc. Tests of achievement may be given to assess the person's background in various academic fields and are often valuable in determining whether or not the person is presently capable of undertaking a certain educational program or is in need of additional prerequisite training in order to remove academic deficiencies. The latter is especially important when considering training on the collegiate level in such technical fields as engineering, physical sciences and other programs where there are rigid academic requirements and little opportunity for the individual to take refresher courses concurrently with the pursuit of a full course of study.

After tests and inventories have been administered, the client returns again to his counselor where the results of the tests are interpreted in detail to him. He has an opportunity to ask questions about them. A next step is to list and explore a number of tentative vocational goals.

Often the individual's choice of an occupation is limited by factors other than interest, intelligence, and aptitude. These additional factors are of great importance in considering the client's suitability for the pursuit of an occupation. They are his physical and personality factors. In assessing these factors, the counselor and client carefully check through an appraisal of physical capacities and environmental factors in relationship to each tentative goal which has been chosen. The client then knows whether or not the goals for which he has interest and ability are compatible with his physical and mental capacities. The counselor must be specially trained for doing the comprehensive job of appraising physical capacities. In addition, it is often helpful and even essential that a physician determine the main factors of physical limitation and act as a medical consultant to the counselor and the client during the counseling process. Counselors at the Career Counseling Center are all experienced with problems of vocational rehabilitation for disabled veterans as counseling services have been rendered on contract with the Veterans Administration since March of 1946. This background of training and experience places these counselors in a valuable position to assist other persons with physical and mental disabilities in considering their vocational and educational goals.

In considering further the function of the counseling psychologist, it should be emphasized that he has a knowledge of some of the common effects of the major disease handicaps upon the individual. The counseling psychologist has a knowledge of some of the major handicapping factors of a disease such as pulmonary tuberculosis. The long periods of hospitalization and bed rest, often found with this type of tuberculosis, have a material psychological effect upon the patient's self-concept or body image. The requirement of rest and inactivity often affect the the patient's motivation. The person who becomes quite dependent upon medical and hospital personnel may become generally dependent. If the individual is to become rehabilitated, the physician and counselor should have some understanding of these psychological effects and client's feelings. The rehabilitation counselor in this respect must be well-grounded in the basic principles of psychology and, in addition, have a rather extensive knowledge of the psychological aspects of physical disability.

It must be emphasized that with this age of change, occupations are changing too. New jobs are being created in the field of atomic power, aeronautics and electronics. Some occupations which previously required little or no training to guarantee suitable employability, now require the completion of certain prescribed courses of training. As occupations change, employment trends are continually being modified. To understand this complex changing field of employment, the counselor must study occupational information published by such authoritative sources as the Bureau of Labor Statistics and the Census Bureau. He must be cognizant of changes in employment trends locally, regionally and nationally. Counselors at the Career Counseling Center utilize current occupational information and keep abreast of the most significant changes through continuous in-service training.

The effective counselor must be well-informed on the resources of his own community. He must know the schools and training institutions that provide certain courses of study. He must be cognizant of college or university entrance requirements. He must know the levels of general and specific abilities necessary to be successful in the training and pursuit of the most common or popular occupations. He must be informed about job placement services available in the community and the community's industries.

The counseling psychologist must be able to evaluate psychological factors which may mean success or failure in the pursuit of a vocational or educational program. Such factors as drive, motivation, emotional adjustment and qualities of perseverance play a very important part.

The purposes of this type of counseling is to assist the client in securing more adequate vocational and educational adjustment. It must be emphasized that counseling is a cooperative process and is conducted as a learning and understanding experience for the client. He learns to understand himself better in becoming familiar with the interrelationships of his interests, drives, aptitudes and abilities. The counselor is an organizer of this complicated process of thinking and evaluation and a reflector of attitudes and questions in order to help the individual in arriving at his own decisions and making his own choices.

One may see that the complicated process of dove-tailing and sythesizing new information of interest, aptitude, ability, achievement, personality, physical and mental capacities and the areas of vocational possibility is not a simple task. The client, after a thorough discussion of occupational possibilities, will be provided a written summary of the highlights of the counseling process. A copy of this is available to the physician who may desire such information for further medical counseling and medical adjustment. Arrangement to receive a copy of this information is usually made prior to the completion of the counseling and with the knowledge and consent of the client. The summary write-ups of the counseling are written in terminology which is nontechnical and which provide, along with a profile of the test results, a valuable record of the counseling.

Counseling as pictured above can prove a very valuable adjunct to medical and psychiatric services. It is another of the services available to assist the individual in attaining a greater degree of health and happiness. Such services may be found at the Career Counseling Center at the University of Denver.

TB NOTES

All physicians should be alerted to the fact that case register loads of active tuberculosis are higher now than at any time in the last few years. With the improved therapy of tuberculosis, case loads obviously will continue to be heavy for some time. Tuberculosis, therefore, is far from being a conquered disease. Physicians should regard it as a duty, both in their practice and in their public utterances, to push for adequate and complete eradication of tuberculosis with whatever tools are feasible and available.—Michael L. Furcolow, M.D., Editorial, Journal-Lancet, April, 1955.

Therapy of Rheumatic

Jever*

Vincent C. Kelley, M.D. SALT LAKE CITY

R ECENT advances in medicine have decreased appreciably the incidence of deaths from many of the previously common infectious diseases. Since this has occurred, rheumatic fever has emerged as the outstanding killer among diseases of children. Only few of the deaths attributable to this disease occur during the initial acute attack; in general they occur during recurrent attacks or as a consequence of the cardiac damage resulting from a previous rheumatic episode. The present approach to therapy of rheumatic fever is two-fold and consists of measures aimed at preventing recurrent attacks in the patient who has had one rheumatic episode and preventing or minimizing cardiac damage in the patient suffering an acute attack of the disease.

The body of evidence implicating the group A beta-hemolytic streptococcus as the initiating agent of both first attacks and recurrences of rheumatic fever has become so imposing as to eliminate any reasonable doubt that at least in most instances this organism is responsible for the initiation of the attack. It has been found repeatedly that approximately 3 per cent of all individuals who contract streptococcal infections develop rheumatic fever as a sequela to these infections. Among patients who have had previous attacks of rheumatic fever a great deal higher percentage, approximately 50 per cent of those who contract streptococcal infections will develop rheumatic fever.

This knowledge of the causal relationship of streptococcal infection to rheumatic fever has given rise to two valuable approaches to the control of the latter: early treatment of streptococcal infections and continuous prophylaxis with antibiotics or sulfonamides to prevent streptococcal infections. Early treatment of streptococcal infections has been demonstrated to be effective in preventing rheumatic sequelae of streptococcal infections. Although several different therapeutic regimens have been studied, the following are those recommended by the American Heart Association: 1. Benzathine Penicillin G: a single intramuscular injection of 1,200,000 units (600,000 units in children). 2. Procaine Penicillin with aluminum monostearate in oil: three intramuscular injections of 600,000 units (300,000 units in children) at three-day intervals or 3. Oral Penicillin: 250,000 units three times each day for ten days. It is recommended that antibiotics other than penicillin be considered only as relatively poor substitutes and be employed only for those individuals to whom for some valid reason penicillin cannot be administered. The sulfonamides are not effective enough in eradication of the streptococcus infection to be recommended for therapy of this type. Although early treatment of streptococcus infections, properly employed, is effective in preventing rheumatic sequelae, it is not an ideal therapeutic approach because of the difficulty involved in identifying the streptococcus infection. It has been estimated that even under optimal conditions approximately 40 per cent of streptococcus infections remain unidentified because of the absence of characteristic symptomatology. For this reason it is considerably safer in a rheumatic fever susceptible population, such as patients who have had previous rheumatic attacks, to rely upon prevention of streptococcus infections rather than their early treatment. The American Heart Association recommends that such individuals receive continuous prophylaxis according to one of the following schedules:

^{*}Presented at Wyoming State Medical Society Meeting, Laramie, June 14, 1955. From the Department of Pediatrics, University of Utah, Salt Lake City, Utah.

1. Sulfadiazine: one gram per day (0.5 gram per day for children weighing less than 60 pounds). 2. Oral penicillin: 200,000 to 250,000 units per day or 3. Benzathine Penicillin G: 1,200,000 units intramuscularly once a month.

Every patient who has had a definite attack of acute rheumatic fever should receive prophylaxis. When the patient first is seen with his acute attack the streptococcal infection should be eradicated by therapy according to one of the schedules previously mentioned. Then immediately he should be placed on one of the prophylactic regimens suggested. Such prophylactic therapy should be continuous, not seasonal, and should be continued for the duration of the life of the patient. Obviously, since the accepted therapy of rheumatic fever involves a life-long and somewhat expensive program, this diagnosis should not be made without adequate evidence. No patient should be placed on prophylaxis on the basis of an uncertain history of rheumatic fever or heart disease of questionable etiology.

There seems little hope of completely eradicating streptococcus infections from the entire population or of successfully identifying and treating all such infections which do occur. Likewise, at the present time we are far from approaching in practice the ideal of continuous anti-streptococcal prophylaxis for every patient who has had an attack of rheumatic fever. Thus, it may be expected that for the predictable future rheumatic fever will remain a common disease.

Althought a rheumatic attack is initiated by a preceding streptococcal infection, eradication of the streptococcus does not terminate the rheumatic activity. The latter may persist for weeks or months despite a p p r o p r i a t e anti-streptococcal therapy. Numerous theories have been advanced in an attempt to explain the intricacies of the relationship between the streptococcus and rheumatic fever but none of these have been established and this relationship remains an enigma.

It has been demonstrated in our laboratory during the past few years that patients with rheumatic fever have relative adrenal cortical insufficiency. These patients consistently are found to have low circulating concentrations of 17-hydroxycorticosteroids, the principal hormones produced by the adrenal cortex, and to have greater than normal concentrations of ACTH in the blood. They do not excrete increased amounts of 17-hydroxycorticosteroids in their urine; and the rate of disappearance from their circulation of intravenously administered hydrocortisone is slower - rather than faster - than normal. Thus, in these patients, although the adrenal cortex is stimulated by greater than normal amounts of ACTH it produces less than normal amounts of 17-hydroxycorticoste-This is interpreted as indicating adrenal insufficiency.

During the first few days of illness rheumatic fever patients have elevated circulating concentrations of 17-hydroxycorticosteroids just as do patients with other acute illnesses. This suggests that the adrenals of these patients are capable of responding to potent stimulation by endogenous ACTH. Likewise at any stage of the illness these patients respond to potent stimulation with exogenous ACTH (25 I.U. intramuscularly) by elevations of their circulating 17-hydroxycorticosteroid concentrations comparable to those which occur in normal individuals following the same stimulus. Because of this ability of rheumatic fever patients to respond to stimulation by either endogenous or exogenous ACTH, their adrenal insufficiency is considered to be relative rather than absolute. The ability of the adrenal cortex to respond to simulation is adequate but the amount of stimulation required to evoke a response is increased.

The existence of adrenal insufficiency in patients with rheumatic fever provides rationale for cortisone therapy in the treatment of this disease. Because these patients have a relative rather than an absolute adrenal insufficiency, being capable of responding to ACTH stimulation by increasing their circulating concentrations of 17-hydroxycorticosteroids in a manner comparable with that in normal individuals, the use of ACTH therapy is as logical as the use of cortisone.

Since the initial report by Hench and associates of the beneficial effects of cortisone in rheumatic fever, numerous controversial reports have appeared concerning the relative effectiveness of hormonal agents and salicylates in this disease. While there is general agreement that hormones produce more or less prompt subsidence of acute rheumatic symptomatology, the opinion that they do not alter the frequency of cardiac residua has been advanced repeatedly. This opinion has been based upon a limited variety of therapeutic regimens very few of which have been individualized with regard to the size of the patient, the severity of the disease, or the response to therapy. There is little reason to believe that ACTH and cortisone, in contrast to nearly all other medications, can be used entirely empirically with no regard for the response of the condition under treatment.

At the outset of our studies the basic premise was assumed that therapy should be individualized with respect to the factors mentioned. It would appear that the data obtained in these studies, which have been presented in detail elsewhere and will be reviewed only briefly here, have justified this approach. Although the effects of the hormones on the acute manifestations of rheumatic fever were reasonably impressive, they will not be emphasized, since if hormone therapy of rheumatic fever is to be of any great value it must accomplish more than a mere shortening of acute symptomatology of the disease. The most important consideration and the one most difficult to evaluate is the effect of therapy on cardiac damage resulting from the disease. In an attempt to obtain an objective evaluation of the effects of therapy on the residual cardiac status of the patient, a comparison was made of the incidence of residual cardiac murmurs in patients who were known to have no murmur before the onset of the attack of rheumatic fever. Of the many rheumatic fever patients whom we have treated there were eighty who could be included in this group. Of these, forty-six were treated with either ACTH or cortisone and thirty-four were treated with either salicylates or bed-rest alone. At the time of institution of therapy, all of the hormone-treated patients and all but one of those not treated with hormones had murmurs. At the time of discharge from the hospital, 52 per cent of the hormone-treated patients and 74 per cent of those not treated with hormones had residual cardiac murmurs. Thereafter, there was no significant change with time in the incidence of residual murmurs in the non-hormone-treated group, whereas in the hormone group the incidence of residual murmurs decreased with each successive examination until at one year only 16 per cent had any residual murmur and at two and three years, only 8 per cent and 6 per cent, respectively, had murmurs. The difference between the two groups with regard to cardiac residua cannot be attributed to patients lost to follow-up; only approximately 30 per cent of hormone-treated patients without complete follow-up data had murmurs at their latest examinations while approximately 80 per cent of the nonhormone-treated patients without complete follow-up data had murmurs at their latest examinations.

In an early stage of these studies it was found that the minimum consistently effective initial dose of ACTH in therapy of acute rheumatic fever was one international unit per pound per day. Patients who received this much or more responded considerably better with regard to their acute rheumatic symptomatology than those who received less. On the basis of later studies it was determined that one international unit ACTH was approximately equivalent to 3 mg. cortisone with regard to clinical response and to the influence on circulating steroid concentrations and urinary 17hydroxycorticosteroid excretion. Therefore, a dose of cortisone of 3 mg. per pound per day was taken as the standard initial dose in our clinic for therapy of rheumatic fever.

Since there is considerable variability in the rapidity with which the rheumatic process subsides during hormone therapy and since the clinical criteria of rheumatic activity disappear so rapidly under the influence of hormones, it is difficult to arrive at a satisfactory definition of the proper period of time to continue therapy at the initial maximum dose level. In our experience, the erythrocyte sedimentation rate is not a satisfactory criterion by which to determine the time of tapering and discontinuing hormone dose, since it becomes normal too soon after the initiation of therapy; if hormone therapy is discontinued at the time that the ESR becomes normal, the patient is likely to exhibit a "clinical rebound." At certain centers, the C-reactive protein concentration has been used as the criterion to determine the presence or absence of rheumatic activity. This, in our experience, is more reliable than the erythrocyte sedimentation rate but is not a completely satisfactory criterion. Various others of the acute phase substances have been studied in the hope that one of these would serve as a more reliable indicator of rheumatic activity; of these, the serum mucoprotein concentration has been found to be the most satisfactory. There is little hazard of "clinical rebound" if hormone therapy is continued in maximal doses until the serum mucoprotein concentration has decreased to a value less than 6 mg. per cent and if tapering of dose then is carried out slowly and cautiously.

At the present time, in our clinic, individualization of therapy is considered an integral and important part of hormone treatment of rheumatic fever. Such individualization is accomplished by:

1. Adjusting the size of the dose to the size of the patient—one I.U. ACTH or 3 mg. cortisone per pound of body weight per day as the minimum initial daily dose.

Adjusting the size of dose to the severity of illness; more severely ill or "critical" patients receive a larger initial daily dose.

3. Adjusting the duration of therapy according to the response of the patient.

Therapy with the full initial dose is continued until the following criteria have been met:

- 1. No clinical evidence of activity remains.
- 2. The erythrocyte sedimentation rate has been normal for at least one week.
- 3. Serum mucoprotein level has decreased at least to 6 mg. per cent. When these criteria have been fulfilled, the dose is very gradually reduced in small steps at two to three day intervals. Before each reduction of dose the erythrocyte sedimentation rate is determined; if there is any evidence of an increasing ESR the dose is not decreased further until this has disappeared. Since this policy has been adopted, we have seen no evidence of "clinical rebound" in any patient treated.

The regimen for hormone therapy described here is only one satisfactory approach. Other methods of heavy dose hormone therapy with similar results have been published recently from other clinical centers. It now seems probable that the cardiac damage resulting from an attack of rheumatic fever can be minimized by properly employed hormone therapy.

Thus, at the present time recurrent attacks of rheumatic fever can be prevented by proper anti-streptococcal therapy and cardiac damage probably can be minimized by proper hormone therapy. Conscientious application of these two forms of therapy should reduce greatly the morbidity and mortality due to rheumatic fever.

EXPECT 5,000 FAMILY DOCTORS AT GENERAL PRACTICE MEETING

More than 5,000 of the nation's family doctors will attend the Eighth Annual American Academy of General Practice Scientific Assembly, March 19-22, 1956, in the Washington, D. C., Armory.

During the four-day scientific meeting, the doctors will hear twenty-six outstanding speakers discuss important subjects ranging from cardiac emergencies to primary wound repair. They will visit more than sixty scientific and 250 technical exhibits. Highlights of the program, which has taken more than a year to plan, include two live clinics, a symposium on obstetrics and an address by Surgeon General Leonard Scheele. Special tours through the National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Maryland, have been arranged.

The Academy's policy-making Congress of Delegates will convene at 2 p.m., Saturday, March 17. All sessions of the Congress and many social functions will be held in the Hotel Statler.

Wednesday evening, March 21, following induction ceremonies for Academy President-elect J. S. DeTar, M.D., Milan, Michigan, more than 3,000 guests will attend a President's reception and dance honoring John R. Fowler, M.D., Barre, Massachusetts, President of the Academy.

Bilateral Jesticular Ectopia-

Case Report

John B. Farley, M.D., Ralph M. Wexler, M.D., Frank E. Stander, M.D., and L. J. Farabaugh, M.D.

PUEBLO, COLORADO

ECTOPIA of the testicles is not an infrequent entity in itself; however, bilateral ectopia is relatively infrequent and few references to it are found in the literature. The condition is an anomaly in position of an undescended testicle which is outside of its normal course. Meredith Campbell¹ divides ectopic testicles into five groups: 1. interstitial; 2. femoral or crural; 3. penile; 4 perineal; and 5. transverse. Campbell also suggests that with a normal length spermatic cord, the migration of the gland is altered from its normal course because of an anomalous blockage of the scrotal opening, resulting in ectopia.

Burdick and Coley2 in 1926, reported interstitial hernia occurring in 15 per cent of their cases and divided the interstitial types into: 1. subcutaneous-with the sac and testes between the superficial fascia and the external oblique muscle; 2. intraparietal -with the testes and sac between the external and internal oblique muscles; or 3. properitoneal-with the sac and testes between the transversus fascia and the peritoneum. Denis Browne³ insists that 80 per cent of the so-called undescended testicles lie anterior to the aponeurosis of the external oblique muscle and within the superficial fascia. Campbell1 states that the figure is nearer 50 per cent. No data were found for the bilateral occurrence of ectopia.

Herewith is reported a case of bilateral interstitial (subcutaneous) ectopia with both undescended testicles lying anterior to the aponeurosis of the external oblique muscles and both having full length and normal-appearing spermatic cords.

CASE REPORT

The patient, a 21-year-old rancher, first visited this office because of "lumps" in the inguinal regions which he had noted since the age of 16. The patient had been married for three years, but his wife has remained childless. Physical examination revealed a single, tender but non-painful, movable, smooth, 2x3 centimeter mass in each inguinal region. There was no evidence of a testical within either scrotal sac. Surgery was advised and a bilateral orchidopexy was planned.

At operation, upon deepening the incision through Scarpa's fascia, the left testicle was found to overlie the fascia of the external oblique muscle at a point almost over the internal ring (Fig. 1). The spermatic cord was of normal length and appearance. Transplantation of the testicle was carried out with the gland being brought down into a manually-made pocket in the left scrotum, and anchored there with a suture. The same anomaly was noted on the right side, and a similar procedure was carried out.

The patient has now returned to his usual ranching duties and has no physical limitations. Sufficient time has not yet elapsed to evaluate the recovery of testicular procreative function.

Summary

An unusual case of bilateral testicular ectopia is presented together with a brief discussion of the condition. No previously reported case of bilateral superficial (sub- we can follow this patient at yearly intercutaneous) ectopia was found in the litera-

Addendum

In spite of transplantation of the ectopic or cryptorchid gland, the incidence of malignancy in the transplanted gland is increased several times over that of a normally situated testis, 4.5. Therefore, it is hoped that vals.

A.M.A. ADVOCATES OBJECTIVE STUDY OF SOCIAL SECURITY LAW

The American Medical Association, through its House of Delegates, has formally called for an "objective, thorough study" of Social Security in all its aspects, including the controversial disability cash payment proposal now pending in the Senate Finance Committee (the Housepassed H. R. 7225). "The American Medical Association will do everything in its power to promote the idea of such a study and to cooperate by conducting more extensive research on disability, rehabilitation and medical care," a Board of Trustees statement adopted by the House of Delegates in Boston declares.

Facts developed by such a study should be used as the basis for a sound national decision on this issue, the House agreed. "Only by getting a clear picture of ultimate liabilities and costseconomic, social and political—can the American people make an intelligent decision on further expansion of the Social Security system."

As the opening phase of an educational program within the medical profession, the Association is mailing out a personal letter from Dr. Elmer Hess, A.M.A. President, to every member of the Association. Some of his points:

. "This measure would be a significant step toward converting the Old Age and Survivors benefit system into a medical care program. It is the most subtle-and hence the most dangerous-approach yet devised. . . "

2. "It was rushed through the House and will be considered by the Senate when it reconvenes in January and after hearings are scheduled by the Senate Finance Committee. . . "

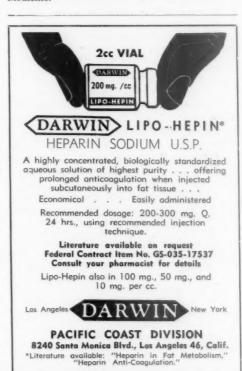

3. "The passage of this bill would carry with it dangerous implications for physicians and eventually tax burdens so heavy that our national economy might be threatened. . . "

4. "A.M.A. hopes to join with many other groups and individuals in a nation-wide program of thoughtful Americans who believe in promoting sound economic security. . . "

Dr. Hess also asks physicians for constructive suggestions and adds: "I want your participation as physician, as friend, as supporter. You can help by writing to your Senators, distributing the enclosed message to your friends and by making copies of it available in your reception

The fact sheet included this observation: "Whatever the merits of the Social Security system, it is apparent to any student of politics that the 'give-away' of government benefits in an election year is a strong temptation to those who are not concerned with the long-range welfare of the country. Once medical benefits are included under the system, it is certain that pressure groups will try to expand and liberalize them, moving step by step toward government medicine."

A monthly news summary from the nation's capital by the Washington Office of the A.M.A.

The second session of the Eighty-Fourth Congress is under way, and in medical legislation—as in all other fields—this promises to be much livelier than last year's deliberations.

For one thing, neither the Republican administration nor the Democratic party, which is in control on Capitol Hill, got anywhere near as much as it wanted last year in medical legislation.

For another thing, and something that shouldn't be lost sight of at any time, both parties this year will be legislating with one eye cocked toward November, when the voters make a choice between the two parties. Try as they might to pass laws for the good of all the people, neither party can afford to ignore the political realities of the situation: each will want to take credit for any legislation with popular appeal or where that is impossible, at least see that the other party doesn't get the credit.

In front of this political mosaic, these are some of the medically-important issues that will be fought out in Senate and House:

- 1. Federal guarantee of mortgages on health facilities. This has been on the Congressional calendar for two years; it was pushed hard in 1954, and was given some consideration in 1955. It would mean that the federal government would underwrite mortgages for hospitals, clinics and nursing homes, under certain conditions, thereby allowing some sponsors to obtain loans they couldn't otherwise get, or to obtain them on longer terms and with lower interest.
- 2. Federal grants for research facilities. Under this plan—approved last session by the Senate—the U. S. would make outright grants to laboratories, medical schools and clinics for building facilities for research in specific diseases, such as cancer and heart disease.
- 3. Federal aid to medical education. This perennial project probably is closer to Congressional enactment now than ever before. The most popular bill is one restricting the federal role to grants for building and equipment, with a financial incentive held out to those schools willing to increase their enrollment. This bill may be tied in with some other grants bill, such as the one for research.
- 4. Salk vaccine, Legislation authorizing federal appropriations for the purchase of Salk poliomyelitis vaccine ($30 million for the current year) expires February 15, virtually insuring

Congressional action of some sort before that date. One issue is whether the federal government should continue the grants; more controversial is the question of whether the U. S. should move in to control the allocation and distribution of the vaccine. Allocation and distribution now are handled under a voluntary program supervised by the U. S. Public Health Service.

- 5. Increases in federal appropriations for medical research. Over the last few years—since the National Institutes of Health came of age—Congress repeatedly has increased research grants over the amounts the Budget Bureau allowed Public Health Service to request. Indications are that this year the Budget Bureau may have to give way and allow important increases to be requested of Congress. Congress probably would want to add on its own special additions anyway, resulting in more money than ever before available for work on cancer, heart disease, mental illness, arthritis, blindness and the many other conditions.
- 6. OASI-covered persons could receive payments beginning at age 50 if determined to be disabled. Under present law retirement payments for all are available at age 65. The bill containing this provision (H. R. 7225) passed the House last session by an overwhelming margin. It is now before the Senate Finance Committee, where the next phase of the legislative contest will be fought out in 1956.

The lop-sided House vote on disability payments may be discounted in part because of the parliamentary maneuvering by sponsors of the legislation. House members had only forty minutes to debate this bill, and no opportunity to amend it. It was a case of accepting the whole bill—which contains a number of other social security liberalizations not of medical significance—or being politically damned as opposed to social security per se.

The American Medical Association maintains that the present expanding rehabilitation programs would be undermined by cash payments for disability, that the financial and other longrange aspects of the disability payments plan have not been thoroughly studied, and that the machinery for disability payments would inevitably project the federal government deeply into the medical care picture.

DR. JOHN S. BOUSLOG HONORED

A gold medal in recognition of his outstanding contributions to the medical specialty of radiology was awarded to Dr. John Bouslog, Denver, at a banquet highlighting the forty-first Annual Meeting of the Radiological Society of North America. Dr. Ira H. Lockwood, Kansas City, Missouri, was similarly honored. The Radiological Society is the largest scientific radiological group in the country.

A Combined Neuro-Effector and Ganglion Inhibitor

Pro-Banthine consistently controls gastrointestinal hypermotility and spasm and the attendant symptoms.

Pro-Banthine is an improved anticholinergic compound. Its unique pharmacologic properties are a decided advance in the control of the most common symptoms of smooth muscle spasm in all segments of the gastrointestinal tract.

By controlling excess motility of the gastrointestinal tract, Pro-Banthine has found wide use¹ in the treatment of peptic ulcer, functional diarrheas, regional enteritis and ulcerative colitis. It is also valuable in the treatment of pylorospasm and spasm of the sphincter of Oddi, Roback and Beal³ found that Pro-Banthine orally was an "inhibitor of spontaneous and histamine-stimulated gastric secretion" which "resulted in marked and prolonged inhibition of the motility of the stomach, jejunum, and colon, ..."

Therapy with Pro-Banthine is remarkably free from reactions associated with parasympathetic inhibition. Dryness of the mouth and blurred vision are much less common with Pro-Banthine than with other potent anticholinergic agents.

In Roback and Beal's² series "Side effects were almost entirely absent in single doses of 30 or 40 mg...."

Pro-Banthine (β-diisopropylaminoethyl xanthene-9-carboxylate methobromide, brand of propantheline bromide) is available in three dosage forms: sugar-coated tablets of 15 mg,; sugar-coated tablets of 15 mg, of Pro-Banthine with 15 mg, of phenobarbital, for use when anxiety and tension are complicating factors; ampuls of 30 mg, for more rapid effects and in instances when oral medication is impractical or impossible.

For the average patient one tablet of Pro-Banthine (15 mg.) with each meal and two tablets (30 mg.) at bedtime will be adequate. G. D. Searle & Co., Research in the Service of Medicine.

Report of Colorado A.M.A. Delegates

Twelve Colorado officers and members, most of them accompanied by their wives, attended the Clinical Session of the A.M.A. in Boston November 29 through December 2. Most of them, in fact, went to Boston one or two days earlier in order to take part also in the A.M.A.'s annual Public Relations Conference on November 28.

Colorado maintained, and possibly enhanced, her reputation for hospitality with a "hospitality suite" in the Statler Hotel. The suite was visited by scores of Delegates and members and their families from Monday through Thursday of the convention week. President "Bob" and Mrs. Porter were daily hosts at the suite, assisted on most occasions by all others of the Colorado delegation.

Excellent addresses on "What's Ahead for Medicine in 1956" were delivered at the Public Relations Conference. All of the talks, not only by A.M.A. officers and other physicians, but also by such leaders as U. S. Senator Bennett of Utah, Congressman Curtis of Missouri, Leonard Read of the Foundation for Economic Education, and Vice President Erle Cocke, Jr., of Delta Air Lines, warned against dangerous social security amendments that some political elements wish to rush through Congress before a general over-all study of future social security needs is completed.

One of the studies needed, for instance, is a genuine poll of the medical profession to learn how many physicians, and from what areas, specialties, etc., wish themselves to be included in the social security program. The A.M.A. last month advised all State Societies to poll their own membership in this regard.

In general, there were fewer controversial issues before the House of Delegates than at most A.M.A. sessions. Colorado's proposals fared well. Our resolution seeking better recognition of general practitioners by hospitals was approved almost word for word, as was our resolution seeking creation of an Automotive Safety Committee at A.M.A. level.

Just before the House of Delegates adjourned, it gave a standing ovation to our own Dr. George Unfug, when Speaker Vincent Askey revealed that George had voluntarily retired from the House and was therefore serving his final session.

Attached hereto is the fine summary of Boston decisions prepared December 2 by Dr. George Lull, A.M.A. Secretary, which we would like to include as part of our report. The Colorado official delegation included, besides Dr. Unfug and the undersigned, Alternate Delegates Irvin E. Hendryson and Everett H. Munro, President Robert T. Porter and Executive Secretary Harvey Sethman. Also attending as members of A.M.A. Committees were Drs. Samuel P. Newman, McKinnie L. Phelps and Fred A. Humphrey. Others attending included Drs. John B. Grow, Scott A. Gale, Paul E. RePass and Cyrus W. Anderson.

Report on Actions of the House of Delegates AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION NINTH CLINICAL MEETING

Nov. 29 - Dec. 2, 1955 - Boston, Mass.

Social Security, the report of the Committee on Medical Practices, grievance committees and revisions of the code of medical ethics were among the major subjects of discussion and action by the House of Delegates at the American Medical Association's Ninth Clinical Meeting held November 29-December 2 in Boston.

Named as the 1955 General Practitioner of the Year was Dr. E. Roger Samuel of Mount Carmel, Pennsylvania, whose selection by a special committee of the Board of Trustees was announced at the opening session on Tuesday. Dr. Samuel, a former member of the House of Delegates and a general practitioner for thirty-five years, received the medal and citation presented annually for community service by a family doctor.

Dr. Gunnar Gundersen, A.M.A. Board Chairman, who made the award to Dr. Samuel, also presented a special citation to Dr. Torald Soll-

Social Security

Major legislative policy action taken at the Boston meeting involved H. R. 7225, known as the Social Security Amendments of 1955. This bill, which was passed last summer by the U.S. House of Representatives and is now pending before the Senate Finance Committee, includes a proposal for federal cash benefits to selected individuals judged to be permanently and totally disabled. The House of Delegates adopted a substitute resolution proposed by the Reference Committee on Legislation and Public Relations to combine the intent of four resolutions and three supplementary reports of the Board of Trustees dealing with H. R. 7225 and other aspects of Social Security. The substitute resolution stated the following basic policy:

"That the American Medical Association reiterate in the strongest possible terms its determination to resist any encroachment upon the American system of medical practice which would be detrimental to our patients, the American people;

"That the American Medical Association urge and support the creation of a well-qualified commission, either governmental or private or both, to make a thorough, objective and impartial study of the economic, social and political impact of Social Security, both medical and otherwise, and that the facts developed by such a study should be the sole basis for objective non-political improvements to the Social Security Act, for the benefit of all of the American people.

"That the American Medical Association pledges its wholehearted cooperation in such a study of Social Security in the United States, and will devote its best efforts to procuring and providing full information on the medical aspects of disability, rehabilitation and medical care of the disabled, and

"That copies of this resolution be transmitted to the President of the United States, to all members of the Cabinet, to all members of the Congress, and to all constituent state medical associations."

OASI Coverage of Physicians

In another action on Social Security, the House passed the following resolution designed to determine the exact attitude of physicians toward compulsory or voluntary coverage under the Social Security system:

"Whereas, Misunderstanding exists about the position of the medical profession on the question of the inclusion of physicians in the Old Age and Survivors Insurance provisions of the Social Security Act; therefore be it

"Resolved, That the House of Delegates of the American Medical Association recommend to state societies that they poll their entire membership on this question and that the results of the poll be transmitted to the Board of Trustees of the American Medical Association as soon as possible."

Report on Medical Practices

The House passed a substitute resolution offered by the Reference Committee on Insurance and Medical Service to implement the findings and recommendations of the Committee on Medical Practices (Truman Committee), which studied the basic causes leading to certain unethical practices and unfavorable publicity. The resolution, adopted with the proviso that it is subject to review by legal counsel, includes the following points:

"That a Continuing Committee on Medical Practice be created in the American Medical Association to conduct a study of the relative value of diagnostic, medical and surgical services and to report its findings and recommendations to this House in the same manner as is now followed by other committees and councils of the Association:

"That this committee shall consist of five members of the House appointed by the Speaker, three of whom shall be general practitioners:

"That this committee be directed to utilize all possible means to stimulate the formation of a department of general practice in each medical school:

"That the American Medical Association approve of the medical school teaching programs which afford the medical student opportunity for experience in the general practice of medicine:

"That the representatives of the American Medical Association on the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals be instructed to stimulate action by that body leading to the warning, provisional accreditation or removal of accreditation of community or general hospitals which exclude or arbitrarily restrict hospital privileges for generalists as a class regardless of their individual professional competence, after appeal to the Commission by the County Medical Society concerned;

"That this committee cooperate in every way and assist the Public Relations Department of the American Medical Association to present a program of public education designed to bring about a better understanding of all fields of medical practice, and

"That this committee use its full influence to discourage any arbitrary restrictions by hospitals against general practitioners as a group or as individuals."

In a complementary action on the same subject, the House also approved a supplementary report of the Board of Trustees which included the following suggestions:

 All non-surgical groups should be asked for their suggestions and cooperation in carrying out a public education program on the value of diagnostic and medical work.

2. The various specialty boards should be encouraged to reappraise the practice restrictions on their board diplomates.

3. The American Medical Association should continue to discourage arbitrary restrictions by hospitals against general practitioners.

4. Organized medicine is "ready, willing and able to solve satisfactorily its own problems, and such assurance should be given to the American Hospital Association or any other group concerning itself with such problems."

Guides for Grievance Committees

The House approved the report of the Committee to Recommend Guides for Grievance or Mediation Committees and commended the committee for "their superb approach to this problem." Purpose of the guides is "to promote general uniformity of organization and function of grievance committees—and better understanding of their purposes—without interfering with the inherent autonomy of constituent medical associations. Constituent associations are therefore urged to implement these guides without delay."

The Reference Committee on Miscellaneous Business made the following recommendations which were adopted by the House:

"Your reference committee desires to support the recommendation that a brochure be published promptly which will outline the recommendations regarding the activities of Grievance Committees and that this brochure be given wide distribution.

"We recommend also that there be an appendix to this brochure in which additional, practical suggestions shall be included.

"We desire also to support the contention that there should be no equivocation concerning the naming of such committees and we recommend that a uniform policy be adopted in which they are called frankly 'Grievance Committees.'

"Finally, your reference committee recommends that because of the many variables, including the laws of the several states, which may influence the operations or procedures followed by State Grievance Committees, legal counsel shall be sought at the local level within the states."

Medical Ethics

A proposed revision of the "Principles of Medical Ethics and Precepts of Manners of the American Medical Association" was submitted the House by the Council on Constitution and Bylaws. The following reference committee suggestion was adopted by the House:

"In discussion it became evident that there was need for wide distribution of these principles and careful study of the proposed changes, not cally by this Reference Committee, but also by all members of the House and in fact all members of the Association. It seemed desirable also that the two Councils (Council on Constitution and Bylaws and the Judicial Council) should meet in joint session to consider these proposals. Your Reference Committee therefore recommends that these proposals be tabled for further consideration at the next annual session of the House to be held in Chicago in June, 1956.

"In the meantime, it is recommended that these proposals in their entirety be widely publicized and that consideration be given to publishing, in the Journal of the American Medical Association and also in state medical journals, these proposed changes in the principles. It is also recommended that consideration be given to the mailing of copies to each member of the Association. Finally, your Reference Committee recommends that prior to the meeting in Chicago next June the Council on Constitution and Bylaws and the Judicial Council meet in joint session to consider these proposed changes."

In another action on revisions of medical ethics, the House also approved a plan requiring that all resolutions dealing with changes in the Principles of Medical Ethics shall be considered over a period between sessions of the House before final adoption.

Miscellaneous Actions

Among many other actions on a variety of other subjects, the House of Delegates also:

Recommended that the Board of Trustees give consideration to a dues increase for all Association members, with the increase designated for contribution to the American Medical Education Foundation:

Adopted a resolution on the practice of pathology declaring opposition to "the division of any branch of medical practice into so-called technical and professional services";

Now, you can prescribe an antibiotic (Filmtab ERYTHROCIN) that provides specific therapy against staph-, strep- or pneumococci. Since these organisms cause most bacterial respiratory infections (and since they are the very organisms most sensitive to ERYTHROCIN) doesn't it make good sense to prescribe ERYTHROCIN when the infection is coccie?

Opening Session

Dr. Elmer Hess, A.M.A. President, told the opening session of the House that complacency should be regarded as the medical profession's greatest enemy. Although good progress is being made in informing the public and the profession of the objectives of organized medicine, he said, educational efforts must be intensified and the list of physicians' tangible acomplishments for the health benefit of the public must be increased.

Dr. Leo H. Bartemeier, Chairman of the A.M.A. Council on Mental Health, told the House that the new Joint Commission on Mental Illness and Health will be ready to embark on its nation-wide study and re-evaluation of the human and economic problems of mental illness after the first of the year. Dr. Bartemeier, who is Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Commission, appeared before the House to explain functions of the new commission, which was organized to carry out the Mental Health Study Act passed by Congress earlier this year without a dissenting vote in either house.

Medical Education Contributions

The A.M.A. Board of Trustees announced that it again has appropriated $100,000 to be contributed to the American Medical Education Foundation for the support of medical schools. The California Medical Association presented a $25,000 check to the AMEF, and the Utah State Medical Society announced an $11,000 contribution.

NEW BOOKLET ON INDIGENT CARE PLANS

Current information on eighteen representative state and local indigent care plans will be included in a booklet published this fall by the A.M.A.'s Council on Medical Service. To learn where organized indigent medical programs were cperating successfully and to determine the characteristics of such programs, the Council's Committee on Indigent Care began a study in 1952 of eleven communities and seven states in various sections of the country. Early in its work the Committee developed "Guides for Evaluating Indigent Medical Care Plans," which were used as criteria for judging the selected programs. Periodic reports have appeared during the past three years in the Journal of the A.M.A.

The new booklet will contain both the "Guides" and reprints of the following studies: (1) state plans—Rhode Island, New York, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Illinois, Washington and North Carolina; (2) local plans—Buffalo, N. Y.; Madison, Wis.; Newark, N. J.; Topeka, Kan.; Gary, Ind.; Cheyenne, Wyo.; Great Falls, Mont.; Des Moines, Ia.; Richmond, Va.; Evansville, Ind., and Fort Wayne, Ind. Raymond F. Peterson, M.D., delegate to the American Medical Association, read a report upon the actions of the A.M.A. House of Delegates at its June meeting in Atlantic City. This report was referred to Reference Committee C by President Malee for study.

Report of Secretary-Treasurer

T. R. Vye, M.D., read the following report of the Secretary-Treasurer, which was referred to Reference Committee B, by President Malee for study:

In reviewing and reporting the activities of the Secretary's office for the last six months, I want to mention first the valuable and faithful service of our Executive Secretary, Mr. Russ Hegland, who always gets things done in a meticulous and business-like manner. He was requested soon after our March Interim Session, from a field of many who were much closer geographically, to visit the office of the Nevada State Medical Society to make suggestions for the reorganization of the Secretary's office in that state. This gives us the feeling that we have a capable man handling the details of the Montana Medical Association.

We have endeavored by our monthly Bulletin to keep each of you informed of important happenings both on the national and on the state level. A wellinformed membership is imperative if we are to have unity, strength and warmth as an organiza-Apathy has no place in medicine. Each of you should be an active member of your medical society. There are many reasons, but two very important ones stand out. The first, of course, is education and the second is organization; without organization we would be lost and certainly socialized medicine and many other evils would soon follow.

Your Secretary and Executive Secretary attended the annual meeting of the A.M.A. at Atlantic City in June of this year. Here it was gratifying to note the work of our Delegate, Raymond F. Peterson, M.D., and also the active interest of our Alternate Delegate, Paul J. Gans, M.D. A report of this meeting has been made by Dr. Peterson.

To date, we have 480 active members of the Montana Medical Association, nine honorary members and forty inactive members. In 1954, there were 472 active members. There are still some physicians practicing in Montana, however, who are not yet members of our organization, but every effort is being made to make these realize the advantages both to themselves and to organized medicine of belonging.

As your Treasurer, I wish to present a brief summary of the financial condition of your Association for the current year. A more detailed report and a report on the audit of the books of account for the full calendar year will, of course, be presented to the House at the 1956 Interim Session.

For the eight month period ending August 31, 1955, the total income of the Association amounted to $28,820.43; of this total, $25,635.50 represented income from membership dues; $2,810.00, income from the sale of exhibit space and $374.93 miscellaneous income. The total income of nearly $29,000.00 is slightly over the income estimated in the 1955 budget because of an increase in our membership. During the remaining four months of the current calendar year there will be little additional income since nearly all of the members of the Association now have remitted their dues for this calendar year and since income from other sources, such as exhibits, has already been received.

The expenditures to date have been within the amounts budgeted for the current' year. These expenditures for the eight month period ending August 31 have amounted to $17,267.59. During the remaining four months of the year it is estimated that expenditures will amount to approximately $11,000.00. These expenditures, we believe, will continue within the limits of the budget and will not exceed total income for the calendar year.

As of August 31, 1955, your Association had a cash balance on deposit in the Security Trust and Savings Bank of Billings of $21,366.42. It has in addition funds invested in government securities of $10,000.00.

Report of Executive Committee

T. R. Vye, M.D., Secretary, read the following report of the Executive Committee which was referred to Reference Committee B by President Malee for study:

Since the last meeting of the House of Delegates during the Interim Session in Helena in March, 1955, the Executive Committee of your Association has met on three occasions to consider various items of Association business.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee in Great Falls on April 23 it was voted that President Malee be authorized to appoint a special committee of five to organize and sponsor a second Medical-Legal Institute, in cooperation with the Montana Bar Association. This action by your Executive Committee seemed most appropriate because of the outstanding success and interest of both physicians and attorneys in the first Medical-Legal Institute which was held in Great Falls during April, 1955.

Your Executive Committee at a meeting in Helena on May 26 voted to approve a report of the special Subcommittee on Poliomyelitis of this Association and the Montana State Board of Health reaffirming the confidence of the medical profession in the Salk polio vaccine and recommending that all component societies of this Association cooperate in the administration of the vaccine. The committee recommended that all physicians administer vaccinations to, and issue prescriptions only for, children within the priority age groups, and that each physician keep a record of the name of each child receiving the vaccine, the age of the child, the date of vaccina-tion, the site of vaccination on the body, the name of the manufacturer of the vaccine and its lot number. The Montana State Board of Health, upon the suggestion of your Executive Committee, has prepared and distributed proper forms to all Montana physicians for recording this information on polio vaccinations. Supplies of these records are available not only through the State Board of Health but also through the Executive Office of Your Association in Billings.

Reference Committees Appointed

In accordance with the action of this House Delegates at its Interim Session in March, 1 President Malee, with the approval of the Executive Committee, has appointed three Reference Committees to review and consider the reports of all standing and special committees and of all representatives of this Association to other groups prior to the sessions of the House of Delegates. The chairman and members of each of these Reference Committees have been informed of the manner in which Reference Committees should operate, and each of the chairmen have cooperated fully with the President and other members of the Executive Committee. It is not anticipated that each Reference Committee this year will be able to operate with true effectiveness but your Executive Committee firmly believes that with experience and with the cooperation of the chairmen of all standing and special committees the use of Reference Committees will materially increase the efficiency of operation of the House of Delegates, as well as facilitate the transaction of business. Each Reference Committee will review the reports of a number of standing and special committees and will carefully consider all recommendations submitted in each of these reports. Each Reference Committee will then submit a summary of the report of each of these standing and special committees and will recommend action to the House of Delegates upon all of the recommendations included in any report.

During the last session of the United States Congress and during the session that will begin January. 1956, many measures of interest and importance to the medical profession are to be considered. The Washington office of the American Medical Association maintains close liaison with all of the governmental officials in Washington and immediately informs all state medical associations of all pending medical legislation. This Washington office of the A.M.A. determines as quickly as possible, after consultation with the Legislative Committee and Board of Trustees of the A.M.A. and after reviewing all actions of its House of Delegates, whether the profession should support or oppose measures of medical interest in the halls of Congress. Each state medical association is promptly informed of the position of the American Medical Association and the reasons for its position. Since the Washington office of the American Medical Association on many occasions requires the assistance and support of state medical associations, the Executive Committee has authorized the Secretary and Executive Secretary to contact the members of the House of Representatives and the Senate from Montana to inform them of the position of the profession on legislation of medical importance. These officers will be guided by the policies established by the House of Delegates and the Board of Trustees of the American Medical Association, as well as by the actions of this House of Delegates, when contacting congressmen about the position of medicine on any legislative measure. In addition, the Executive Office of this Association will inform a number of physicians in each area throughout the State of all legislation pending in the United States Congress so that local medical societies and individual physicians may be alerted and may inform individual congressmen of their own position.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee on Wednesday evening, September 15, President Malee read a letter addressed to Mr. Robert Swanberg, Chairman of the Industrial Accident Board, by David R. Johnson, M.D., protesting a directive of the Board about consultation. This directive of the Board, issued September 1, requires all physicians to obtain "authority for referral before it is made."

It is the recommendation of the Executive Committee that the House of Delegates authorize the Executive Committee to confer immediately with the Chairman and other members of the Industrial Accident Board to express the disapproval of the Association to this directive and to urge that it be rescinded by the Board without delay.

Following the roll call, the Secretary, T. R. Vye, M.D., announced that a quorum was present. It was moved by B. C. Farrand, M.D., that S. C. Prott, M.D. Miles City, and T. J. Males.

It was moved by B. C. Farrand, M.D., that S. C. Pratt, M.D., Miles City, and T. J. Malee, M.D., Glendive, be seated as delegates from the Southeastern Montana Medical Society. This motion was seconded and carried.

Reference Committee Reports

The following report was presented by F. D. Hurd, M.D., Chairman of Reference Committee A:

Reference Committee A, which was responsible for the study of the reports of the various scientific committees of this Association, is happy to advise the members of this House of Delegates that the chairman of each of these scientific committees submitted a written report for review by your Reference Committee. Five of the reports of these committees, however, contained no request for action or no recommendation for consideration of this Reference Committee and the House of Delegates. Your Reference Committee wishes to commend all of the chairmen of the scienticic committees for submitting comprehensive reports of their activities. Your Reference Committee recommends that the reports of the Committee on School Health, the Committee on Hospital Relations, the Public Health Committee, the Committee on Blood and the Rocky Mountain Medical Conference Committee be placed on file, since they contain no recommendations to be considered by this House of Delegates.

It was moved by Dr. Hurd that this portion of the report of Reference Committee A be adopted. This motion was seconded and carried.

The Arthritis and Rheumatism Committee, under the chairmanship of Ralph H. Blehn, M.D., recommends that each component society of this Association appoint a local committee to act as a local liaison between the Arthritis and Rheumatism Committee of the Montana Medical Association and the Rocky Mountain Chapter of the Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation. Your Reference Committee concurs in this recommendation and suggests that component societies appoint such liaison committees to cooperate with the Arthritis and Rheumatism Committee of this Association.

Dr. Hurd moved approval of this recommendation of the Reference Committee. This motion was seconded and carried.

The Rheumatic Fever and Heart Committee, under the chairmanship of Deane C. Epler, M.D., presented the following recommendations for study by this Reference Committee: 1) that the Rheumatic Fever and Heart Committee cooperate and promote the organization of a Montana Heart Association: 2) that members of the Rheumatic Fever and Heart Committee be willing to serve as members of the Board of Directors of the Montana Heart Association; 3) that each component medical society of this Association appoint a committee to cooperate with the Rheumatic Fever and Heart Committee and the Montana Heart Association; and 4) that the Rheumatic Fever and Heart Committee cooperate with the State Board of Health and the Montana Heart Association in the sponsorship of postgraduate lectures. Your Reference Committee concurs in these recommendations of the Rheumatic Fever and Heart Committee and recommends their approval by this House of Delegates.

Dr. Hurd moved the adoption of this portion of the report. This motion was seconded and carried.

The Rural Health Committee, under the chairmanship of B. C. Farrand, M.D., has recommended that a letter of appreciation be written by the Secretary and sent to R. R. Renne, President of Montana State College, for his willingness to be the guest speaker at the joint meeting of the Montana Public Health Association and the Rural Health Committee. Rural Health Committee also recommends that a contribution be forwarded to the student loan fund of Montana State College by the Montana Medical Association, since President Renne was unwilling to accept reimbursement of his travel expenses to their joint meeting. - Your Reference Committee urges the approval of both of these recommendations of the Rural Health Committee and suggests that the House of Delegates authorize the Secretary-Treasurer to contribute the sum of $50.00 to the student loan fund of Montana State College.

Dr. Hurd moved the adoption of this portion of the Reference Committee report. This motion was seconded and carried.

The report of the Fracture and Orthopedic Committee, under the chairmanship of John C. Wolgamot, M.D., included the following recommendations which were carefully reviewed by your Reference Committee: 1) that a program to provide orthopedic consulation service at the Montana State Tuberculosis Sanitarium by qualified orthopedic surgeons, who will be reimbursed for their services on the basis of the nominal stipend and mileage allowance as authorized in the schedules of the State Board of Health, be authorized and approved. This service, the committee suggested, may be financed by the Montana Tuberculosis Association. The Fracture and Orthopedic Committee suggested that this consultation service be available at three month intervals, but your Reference Committee is of the opinion that such an interval is too long and recommends, instead, that consultations be arranged at the request of the institution; 2) that the Economic Committee of this Association be requested to consider the inclusion of the following orthopedic services at the fee indicated in the Average Fee Schedule of the Association and that that Committee or the Industrial Welfare Committee request the inclusion of these fees for orthopedic service in the schedule of the Industrial Accident Board:

PROCEDURE	FEE
Partial laminectomy and spine fusion	$350.00
Arthrodesis or arthroplasty hip, knee, or shoulder
Arthrodesis angle, elbow or wrist	200.00
Triple arthrodesis (inc. subastragalar and midplantar joints)
Repair torn musculotendinous cuff shoulder	200.00
Repair for recurrent dislocation shoulder	200.00
Removal semilunar cartilage (meniscus)	150.00

Your Reference Committee concurs in these recommendations of the Fracture and Orthopedic Committee. Dr. Hurd moved the adoption of this portion of the report of the Reference Committee. This motion was seconded and carried.

Another recommendation of the Fracture and Orthopedic Committee which has been studied by your Reference Committee requests: 1) that it be recommended to the State Board of Health that a deficiency appropriation be requested by the Division of Child Health Services to prevent curtailment of diagnostic services because of the lack of funds available to the State Board of Health because of the default of federal appropriations.

Your Reference Committee concurs in this recommendation and suggests its approval by the House of Delegates.

Report Rejected

Dr. Hurd moved the adoption of this portion of the report of the Reference Committee. This motion was seconded but failed to carry.

Your Reference Committee concurs in the final recommendation of the Fracture and Orthopedic Committee that in an effort to reduce hospital expenses incurred for child health services, convalescent hospital facilities be used when feasible and that those cases requiring long term periods of hospitalization be transferred to Shodair Hospital.

Dr. Hurd moved the adoption of this portion of the report. This motion, however, was not seconded and, therefore, failed. It was then moved that this portion of the report of the Reference Committee and this recommndation of the Fracture and Orthopedic Committee be rereferred to that Committee for further study. This motion was seconded and carried.

The Tuberculosis Committee of the Montana Medical Association, in its report, requested that a study be made in cooperation with the Montana Trudeau Society and the Montana Tuberculosis Association to develop a more uniform skin testing program and that a manual on procedure be published and distributed to the members of this Association as well as other agencies interested in tuberculosis control. Your Reference Committee concurs in this proposal of the Tuberculosis Committee. The Tuberculosis Committee also recommended that proper legislation be presented to the state legislature to regulate the recalcitrant tuberculosis patient. Your Reference Committee suggests that this recommendation of the Tuberculosis Committee be referred to the Legislative Committee of the Association for study.

Dr. Hurd moved the adoption of this portion of the report of the Reference Committee. This motion was seconded and carried.

The report of the Cancer Committee, under the chairmanship of Harold W. Gregg, M.D., was carefully reviewed by the members of your Reference Committee. The Cancer Committee reports that the following recommendations were submitted by it to the Board of Directors of the Montana Division of American Cancer Society: 1) that the policy of reimbursing one physician from each component medical society of this Association for his travel expenses to certain cancer refresher courses remain as heretofore; 2) that the Montana Division of the American Cancer Society continue its support of regional research projects in the Northwest; 3) that the Montana Division, at least for the present, defer sponsorship of two-day cancer conferences in Montana: 4) that the Montana Division of the American Cancer Society continue its cooperation with the State Board of Health and the Cancer Committee of this Association in the presentation of mural postgraduate courses in certain Montana Communities

Since this report is for the information of the members of this House your Reference Committee only suggests that it be placed on file.

The Committee on Mental Hygiene, under the chairmanship of W. S. Wilder, M.D., in its report recommends that this Committee be made a standing committee of the Montana Medical Association and that the By-Laws be amended accordingly. It also recommends that the Montana Medical Association reimburse a representative of the Mental Hygiene Committee for all or part of his travel expenses to the annual conference of mental health sponsored by the American Medical Association. Your Reference Committee concurs with philosophy expressed in the report of the Mental Hygiene Committee and recommends that the proper committee of the Association be instructed to prepare the necessary amendments to the By-Laws to provide that this Committee become a standing committee of the Association. Your Reference Committee suggests that the other recommendation of the Mental Hygiene Committee, relating to the travel expenses of a representative to the annual conference on mental health, be referred to the Executive Committee for consideration.

Dr. Hurd moved that this portion of the report of the Reference Committee be adopted. This motion was seconded and carried.

The report of the Maternal and Child Health Committee, under the chairmanship of Donald L. Gillespie, M.D., was carefully reviewed by your Reference Since this report contained no specific Committee. recommendations, but was for the information of the members of the House of Delegates, your Reference Committee recommends only that it be placed on file. Your Reference Committee, however, would like to report to the members of the House of Delegates that the Maternal and Child Health Committee did request the legal counsel of this Association to render an opinion upon the liability of physicians submitting information regarding infant and maternal deaths to the Committee for study. The legal counsel, in his summary of conclusions, indicated that it was his opinion that the Committee has no legal liability so long as the business of the Committee, relating to the survey of maternal and child deaths, is conducted in the same manner as it has been in the past.

Amended Report Adopted

Dr. Hurd, as Chairman of Reference Committee A, then expressed his sincere appreciation to the members of his Reference Committee and to the chairmen of the standing committees of the Association for their cooperation and help. Dr. Hurd moved the adoption of the report of Reference Committee A as amended. This motion was seconded and carried.

The following report was presented by Paul J. Gans, M.D., on behalf of George D. Waller, M.D., Chairman of Reference Committee B:

Reference Committee B which was responsible for the study of the reports of the various business committees and officers of this Association pleased to advise the members of this House of Delegates that the chairmen of all of these committees, except the Legislative Committee, the Interprocessional Committee and the Committee on Highway Safety, prepared and submitted written reports of their activities during the past year. The reports of a few of the other committees, namely, the Committee on Legal Affairs and Malpractice, the Committee on Veteran Affairs, the Committee on Medical Education, the special Committee on Medical-Legal Institute and the report of the Secretary-Treasurer, were informational reports and contained no requests for action or no recommendations for the consideration of this Reference Committee and the House of Delegates. Your Reference Committee, therefore, wishes to commend the chairmen of these committees and the Secretary-Treasurer for the informative reports of their activities and to recommend to this House of Delegates that their reports be placed on file.

It was moved by Dr. Gans that this portion of the report of Reference Committee B be adopted. This motion was seconded and carried.

The report of the Executive Committee, which was read in full to this House of Delegates at its first session, indicates to your Reference Committee the devotion and interest of the officers in the welfare of the medical profession of Montana. supplemental report of the Executive Committee recommended that this House of Delegates authorize it to confer immediately with the chairman and other members of the Industrial Accident Board to express the disapproval of this Association to the directive of the Board, issued September 1, which requires all physicians to obtain "authority for referral before it is made" and to urge the Board to rescind this directive without delay. Your Reference Committee concurs in this recommendation of the Executive Committee and suggests that it be approved by this House of Delegates.

Dr. Gans moved the approval of this portion of the report of Reference Committee B. This motion was seconded and carried.

The report of the Economic Committee, under the Chairmanship of Paul J. Gans, M.D., included the following recommendations: 1) that the group investment plan for members of this Association proposed by the J. M. Dain Company, not be adopted since in the opinion of your Reference Committee it is not suitable for our membership; 2) that the following medical services be included in the Average Fee Schedule of this Association:

PROCEDURE		FEE
Exchange Transfusions		_$75.0
Prostatic Massage, perform
Parenteral Medication, not	intravenous

3) that the Economic Committee continue its cooperation with the Director of the Division of Public Assistance of Montana and that the committee submit its proposals upon the care of medical indigents in this state after further study during the Interim Meeting in Helena, 1956; 4) that except for the additions to the Average Fee Schedule recommended above, it remain as it is until the Economic Committee has had further opportunity to study and complete its fee survey.

Your Reference Committee concurs in each of these recommendations of the Economic Committee except the recommendation of a fee for parenteral medication in the physician's office: Your Reference Committee recommends instead that a fee of $8.00 or more, depending upon the cost of materials, for parenteral medication be added to the Average Fee Schedule of this Association under the section on Miscellaneous Medical Treatment.

Dr. Gans moved the adoption of this portion of the report of Reference Committee B. This motion was seconded and carried.

The Committee on Necrology and History of Medicine, under the Chairmanship of E. M. Gans, M.D., reported the death of the following Montana physicians since the last meeting of this House of Delegates:

Thomas A. Mathews, M.D., St. Ignatius, January, 1955

Robert R. Means, M.D., Livingston, April 2, 1955 D. A. Lucking, M.D., Helena, May 4, 1955 F. R. Schemm, M.D., Great Falls, May 16, 1955 John B. Sullivan, M.D., Great Falls, May 17, 1955 Jean R. Morris, M.D., Billings, July 4, 1955 Robert J. Hathaway, M.D., Glendive, July 17, 1955

Members of the House of Delegates stood for a moment of silence in memory of these deceased Montana physicians.

Your Reference Committee suggests that the portion of the Committee on Necrology and History of Medicine be placed on file.

Dr. Gans moved the adoption of this portion of the report of Reference Committee B. This motion was seconded and carried.

The report of the Public Relations Committee, under the Chairmanship of Park W. Willis, Jr., M.D., was reviewed by your Reference Committee with much interest. Your Reference Committee wishes particularly to commend the Chairman and the members of this Committee for their untiring and conscientious efforts. It concurs heartily in the statement of the Public Relations Committee that "the essence of good medical nublic relations is to see a sick person promptly when called; to relieve pain as quickly as possible; to leave no stone unturned to make an accurate diagnosis; and to get the patient well as fast as God's will will permit. During this time it is our obligation to remain humble, sympathetic, understanding and steadfast in one's duty and to charge a reasonable fee. This is the duty of each member of this Association. The Public Relations Committee in its report submitted the following recommendations:

1) that a meeting of the new Public Relations Committee be held this fall with a PR Chairman from each component society present to meet with it;

 that an invitation be issued to each component society not represented on the state PR committee to send observing representatives to such meetings and report back to their local societies;

3) that the chairman of this committee be sent to the Annual PR Conference of the A.M.A. in Chicago each year and that he be reimbursed for his travel fare by the state association;

4) that at least ten minutes of each component society meeting be devoted to reading "Principles of Medical Ethics," the PR Manual or "Winning Ways with Patients":

5) that copies of "Your Health" as published by the North Carolina Medical Association be published by this Association and be made available in quantities, at cost, to its members;

6) that copies be made of Dr. McCormack's quotation and one sent to each member for his office wall: 7) that there must be a PR chairman of each local component society. In order for this committee to be effective, 100 per cent cooperation of every member of the state association and every component society is essential. Every component society has been asked to name a PR chairman, but this has not been done;

8) that all new members of the Association should have a proper indoctrination, including an explanation of the uses and purposes of the component society and the state association, together with the responsibilities of membership as well as its privileges, beyond just the acceptance of their membership fees;

 more active participation by component societies in civil defense and community projects.

Upon completing its study of this report, your Reference Committee suggests to this House of Delegates that recommendations 1 and 2 above be approved: that recommendations 3, 5 and 6 above be referred to the Executive Committee of this Association for consideration since each involves the expenditure of funds; that recommendation 4 above be referred to the various component societies for consideration; that recommendation 7 above be not considered at this time since it is somewhat a duplication of the first and second recommendations of the Committee: that recommendation 8 above be referred to the office of the Executive Secretar, since he has certain material available for distribution to new members that will help indoctrinate them; and that recommendation 9 be revised to read "more active participation by component societies in civil defense and community projects in order to make them effective."

Dr. Gans moved the adoption of this portion of the report of the Reference Committee. This motion was seconded and carried.

The Mediation Committee, under the Chairmanship of Harold W. Fuller, M.D., in its report, recommends that each component society of this Association appoint and encourage the development of an active mediation or grievance committee since many of the minor complaints against physicians for professional services or conduct may best be adjudicated on a local level and because such local committees may also be of invaluable service to the Mediation Committee of this Association. Your Reference Committee of this Association.

Dr. Gans moved that this portion of the report of the Reference Committee be adopted. This motion was seconded and carried.

The Committee on Emergency Medical Service, under the chairmanship of George E. Trobough, M.D., submitted a very comprehensive report and a number of recommendations for the consideration of this Reference Committee and this House of Delegates. The recommendations in the report of the Committee on Emergency Medical Service were as follows:

 that the chairman of the component medical society check with the local hospitals to see that each has a functioning disaster plan and if none, to help in preparing one;

2) that, as soon as plans are further formulated for a state meeting in conjunction with Public Health Service Region VIII, full cooperation be given by the state medical association to make such a meeting successful:

3) that the recommendations as approved by the House of Delegates at the Interim Session in reference to this Committee be followed up for compliance:

4) that component medical societies emergency medical service committees investigate, and if possible help to institute, first aid programs in their counties with assistance of the Red Cross;

5) that the Executive Committee and Legislative Committee of the state medical association give the members of this Committee all the necessary aid for presentation of an appropriation bill at the next Legislative Assembly and this be prepared and brought up to date before the next Legislature meets;

6) that, if possible, the state medical association sponsor one physician a year to the Surgeon General's course on medical care of atomic casualties, and that if one is sent, he not be subject to draft or be a reserve officer.

Your Reference Committee suggests the approval of the first four above recommendations of this Committee as outlined above; that recommendation 5 above be amended to read "that the Executive Committee and the Legislative Committee of this Association give the Committee on Emergency Medical Service all necessary help and aid to secure passage of an appropriation bill at the next Legislative Assembly"; and that recommendation 6 above be referred to the Executive Committee for further consideration.

Dr. Gans moved the adoption of this portion of the report of the Reference Committee. This motion was seconded and carried.

While the report of the Program Committee which was referred to this Reference Committee for study did not contain any recommendations for consideration by this House of Delegates, your Committee wishes to commend most highly the Chairman and members of this Committee for their presentation of two very excellent and unusual scientific programs during the current year.

Dr. Gans moved the adoption of this portion of the report of the Reference Committee. This motion was seconded and carried.

Entire Report Adopted

Dr. Gans then moved the adoption of the report of Reference Committee B as a whole. This motion was seconded and carried.

The following report was presented by M. A. Gold, M.D., Chairman of Reference Committee C:

This Committee was responsible for the review of the reports of the Resolutions Committee, of certain special committees and of representatives of this Association to other state and national organizations. Members of this Reference Committee would like to suggest and urge that the chairmen of all committees and all representatives reporting to this House plan to submit their reports further in advance of the meetings of the House so that each may be reviewed more carefully by your reference committees.

The reports of our representatives to the following organizations were informational only and contained no requests for action or no recommendations for the consideration of this House: Delegate, American Medical Association, R. F. Peterson, M.D.; Representative, Montana Committee for the Employment of the Physically Handicapped, Howard M. Clemmons, M.D.; Delegate, Montana Health Planning Council, Walter G. Tanglin, M.D.; Editor for Montana, Rocky Mountain Medical Journal, R. F. Peterson, M.D.

Dr. Gold moved the adoption of this portion of the report of the Reference Committee. This motion was seconded and carried.

The report of our representative, L. S. McLean, M.D., to the State Committee for Student Affiliation in the Field of Public Health included a recommendation that this Association continue its participation and cooperation with this Committee. Your Reference Committee concurs in this recommendation and recommends its approval.

Dr. Gold moved that this portion of the report of Reference Committee C be adopted. This motion was seconded and carried.

Our representative to the Joint Commission for the Improvement of the Care of the Patient, S. C. Pratt, M.D., has recommended in his report that the House of Delegates again authorize an appropriation, not to exceed $50.00, to assist in the financing of this Commission during the coming year. Inasmuch as the Executive Committee of this Association has reported that the expenditure of these funds may be included in the 1956 budget, your Reference Committee suggests the approval of this recommendation to appropriate the sum of $50.00 to this Commission.

Dr. Gold moved that this portion of the report of Reference Committee C be adopted. This motion was seconded and carried.

The report of our representative to the American Medical Education Foundation, Chester W. Lawson, M.D., included two recommendations which were carefully considered by your Reference Committee. Our representative to the Foundation suggests and your Reference Committee concurs that all Montana physicians be urged to contribute generously to the Foundation to support medical schools. In order to encourage such contributions from all physicians, your Reference Committee, by vote of 3 to 1, recommends to this House of Delevote that the annual membership dues be increased by the sum of $15.00 and that this amount be contributed to medical education through the American Medical Education Foundation.

The adoption of this portion of the report was moved by Dr. Gold and seconded. Following a lengthy discussion upon this proposal to increase the annual dues in the amount of $15.00, the following substitute motion was offered: That action upon this proposal be deferred until members of the House of Delegates have discussed it with the members of their component societies. This motion was seconded and carried.

Resolutions Adopted

The following resolution, proposed by the Resolutions Committee, under the chairmanship of T. L. Hawkins, M.D., has been carefully studied by your Reference Committee and the Committee recommends its adoption:

WHEREAS, The American Medical Association has urged the constituent and component societies to lend their support to a study of grievance committees by a special committee of the A.M.A. and to assist such committee in developing a practical set of guides; and

WHEREAS, The Montana Medical Association has such a committee in operation; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Montana Medical Association express its willingness to the American Medical Association to aid in every way the committee of the American Medical Association for the study and the development of a practical set of guides for grievance or mediation committees.

Dr. Gold moved that this portion of the report of the Reference Committee be adopted. This motion was seconded and carried.

The following resolution proposed by the Resolutions Committee has been carefully studied by your Reference Committee, which recommends its adoption:

WHEREAS, The American Medical Association has requested the component and constituent medical associations to participate aggressively in civil defense programs and has requested such associations to develop a practical program for carrying out its medical civil defense responsibility; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Montana Medical Association will do its utmost in the development of such organizations.

Dr. Gold moved that this portion of the report of the Reference Committee be adopted. This motion was seconded and carried.

The following resolution proposed by the Resolution Committee has been carefully reviewed by your Reference Committee and it recommends its adoption:

WHEREAS, Legislation which proposes mortgage insurance for medical facilities has been presented to Congress; and

WHEREAS, Subsidization by any agent of government invariably leads to control by government and to rapidly deteriorating performances of functions so subsidized; and

WHEREAS, The program would be federally controlled and would discriminate against other groups; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Montana Medical Association in regular session assembled this 15th day of September, 1955, oppose legislation to provide mortgage insurance for medical facilities or any other type of direct or indirect federal subsidization for voluntary prepayment and group practice medical care plans and facilities; and he it

RESOLVED further, That the Montana Medical Association use all methods toward the defeat of such proposals.

The following resolution proposed by the Resolutions Committee has been carefully reviewed by your Reference Committee, which recommends its adoption:

WHEREAS, The members of the Montana Medical Association, in regular sessions assembled in the past, have adopted resolutions favoring passage of Senator Bricker's Amendment to the Constitution which would limit future treaty commitments to such areas as (1) those which would not abridge individual freedom and (2) those which would not be unconstitutional if adopted as domestic law; and

WHEREAS, Many members of the new Congress are not familiar with the Bricker Amend-

WHEREAS, Senator John W. Bricker introduced his new Amendment, S. J. Res. 1, on January 6, 1955; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the members of the Montana Medical Association in regular session assembled this 15th day of September, 1955, oppose the principle of federal health reinsurance and all similar legislation which would establish federal reinsurance or direct federal subsidization of the voluntary and private health plans, and oppose the federal government financing and providing services which are the responsibility of individuals, private groups and the individual States.

Dr. Gold moved that this portion of the report of the Reference Committee be adopted. This motion was seconded and carried.

Resolutions Deferred

After a careful study of the resolution on federal subsidization of medical schools, your Reference Committee recommends that action upon it be deferred and that it be returned to the Resolutions Committee for further study and clarification. Your Reference Committee is unanimously opposed to federal subsidization but is of the opinion that the reasons for this opposition should be included in the resolution and that the policy of the American Medical Association towards single grants to medical schools should also be studied.

Dr. Gold moved the adoption of this portion of the report of the Reference Committee. This motion was seconded and carried.

Speakership Approved, Then Tabled

Your Reference Committee reviewed carefully and discussed thoroughly the report of the special committee which proposed (1) that the offices of Speaker and Vice-Speaker of the House of Delegates be instituted and (2) that the By-Laws of the Association be amended to provide for these offices as proposed during the first session of this House of Delegates. Your Reference Committee concurs in both these proposals and recommends their approval.

It was moved by Dr. Gold and seconded that this portion of the report of Reference Committee C be adopted and that the House of Delegates consider the necessary amendments to the By-Laws at its next session. This motion was seconded and carried.

This motion was carried. At the request of President Malee, the Chairman of Reference Committee C, Dr. Gold, restated his motion upon the recommendation of this Committee which was 1) that the offices of Speaker and Vice-Speaker of the House of Delegates be instituted and 2) that the By-Laws of the Association be amended to provide for these offices as proposed during the first session of this House of Delegates Following a lengthy discussion upon both of the proposals included in this motion, it was moved by David Gregory, M.D., and seconded that the motion be tabled. Gold, M.D., 1) that the offices of Speaker and Vice-Speaker of the House of Delegates be instituted and 2) that the By-Laws of the Association be amended to provide for these offices as proposed during the first session of this House of Delegates, which was tabled yesterday, be taken from the table and considered at this time. This motion was seconded and carried. Following a discussion of the motion, M. A. Gold, M.D., offered, as a substitute motion, that the proposal to establish the offices of Speaker and Vice-Speaker be referred to the component societies of this Association for consideration and that action be postponed until the Interim Session in Helena during March, 1956. This motion was seconded and carried. It was then moved by Dr. Gold that action upon the proposed amendments to the By-Laws to provide for a Speaker and Vice-Speaker also be deferred until the Interim Session. This motion was seconded and carried.

President Malee requested George M. Donich, M.D., President of Montana Physicians' Service, to present his report on the activities of that organization. Following the presentation of this report, it was ordered placed on file, since it contained no recommendation and was primarily for the information of the members of the House of Delegates.

Book Reviews

Peripheral Vascular Disease: Allen, Barker, and Hines, 2nd edition.

This is a second edition of the popular and widely accepted text on peripheral vascular diseases. Since 1946, the first edition has been the outstanding single reference for medical students and physicians in their study of the common and perplexing problems of this broad field of medicine.

In this new edition, the authors have covered each phase of vascular disease and, yet, have so streamlined the text that a subject can be rapidly studied and reviewed. In order to cover each field expertly, the authors have included the contributions of thirteen doctors, each regarded as an authority in his particular field of interest. Physiology and pathology, which are so necessary for the basic understanding of a medical problem, are well presented. The authors have simplified the necessary diagnostic procedures so that the practicing physician can rapidly and thoroughly make an accurate diagnosis. A differential diagnosis discussion follows each specific disease process so that the physician is aware of what other diseases must be considered. Since the publication of the first edition, great strides have been made in both the medical and the surgical treatment of vascular diseases. Many new drugs are now available to the practitioner. The realm of vascular surgery has increased rapidly, and the very important indications for surgery in these patients are well presented. The treatment by surgery of congenital and traumatic vascular problems has been practiced for many years, but it has been only in recent years that surgical therapy in the patient with degenerative vascular disease has become more popular. This text not only will be of great value to the student and the vascular specialist, but will also serve as an accurate and basic reference to all who are engaged in the active practice of medicine.

ROBERT McCURDY, M.D.

Counseling in Medical Genetics: By Sheldon C. Reed, Director, Sight Institute for Human Genetics, University of Minnesota. W. B. Saunders Company, 1955. 268 pages. Price: $4.00.

This book offers for the first time in one place the genetics of the more common hereditary traits in man. Much of the material is not new, but the author has collected pertinent information on the transmissability of various hereditary disabilities and has presented it in a very interesting and concise manner. The manner of presentation is informal and illustrative examples are generously used.

There is first a brief review of genetic principles as applied to man. Then each chapter is devoted to a hereditory trait such as mongolian, clubfoot, harelip, and a number of others. Most attention is devoted to diseases or abnormalities with a frequency of better than one in 1,000 births. However, an appendix lists practically all genetically transmitted traits known at the present time.

Parents are justifiably concerned about the chance of occurrence or recurrence of an heriditary abnormality or disease in their children. For instance, fibrocystic disease of the pancreas has a one in seven chance of reappearing in children subsequent to the birth of a child with this condition. The chance for repetition of mongolism is 14 per cent. Such is the useful information that may be obtained without need for laborious search for the literature.

I heartily recommend this book for those physicians concerned with marriage and family counseling which includes the majority of practitioners.

PAUL F. McCALLIN, M.D.

Tea. A Symposium on the Pharmacology and the Physiologic and Psychologic Effects of Tean By Henry J. Klaunberg. The Biological Sciences Foundation, Washington, D. C., 1955. Paper, 64 pages. Price: $1.00.

This booklet was prepared for the purpose of beginning an organization of research and clinical data on tea that will be of practical value to dietitians, nutritionists, the medical profession, and to those engaged in research in these fields.

Tea contains at least the following: Caffeine, theophylline, theobromine, tannins, essential oils, fluorine, adenine, glutathione; vitamins (nicotinic acid, ribaflavin, ascorbic acid, thiamin, pantothenic acid); amino-acids (aspartic acid, arginine, theamine, asparagine, glutamic acid, glycine, valine, leucine, threonine, alanine). Many of these substances are present only in traces. The principal pharmacologic responses evoked by the ingestion of infused tea are slight psychic stimulation and mild duiresis and are due to the xanthines present, mainly caffeine, or at least caffeine plus tannin.

Tea as used for the relief of fatigue and the effect of tea on gastric secretions and motility is discussed. Also reported are certain psychological and psychophysiological effects of this beverage.

In the treatment of most gastrointestinal conditions tea as a beverage, taken in average amounts, need not be contraindicated. Its medicinal value remains to be clearly proved.—Kathleen Newell, Teaching Dietitian, University of Colorado Medical Center.

Obstetrical Practice: By Alfred C. Beck, M.D., Professor Emeritus of Obstetrics and Gynecology, State University of New York; and Alexander H. Rosenthal, M.D., Clinical Associate Professor of Obstetrics and Gynecology, State University of New York. 6th ed. Published by Williams & Wilkins, Baltimore, 1955. 1066 pages, illus. Price: $12.00.

This is the sixth edition of this work, apparently revised principally by Dr. Rosenthal. It is primarily a book for students and as such somewhat redundant in its contents. One almost has the feeling that there is some padding and repetition without consideration of more recent thinking. It is always difficult to achieve succinctness when the attempt is made to cover all possible variations of a subject. More practical value is achieved if fundamental theory and fundamental technics are stressed, since all problems are solved by a variable combination of these. However, it could be a valuable reference for the general practitioner without benefit of consultants and for students.

CHEST X-RAY SCREENING PROGRAMS

The American College of Radiology has announced a five-point program aimed at guiding mass chest x-ray screening programs for the detection of pulmonary tuberculosis.

At the same time, the College statement pointed out that the results thus far have been discouraging in the attempted detection of heart disease and lung cancer through use of x-ray screening procedures.

The American College of Radiology is the national medical association representing radiologists, those physicians who specialize in the use of x-rays, radium and other radioactive substances in the diagnosis and treatment of disease.

"Chest x-ray surveys for the detection of communicable pulmonary disease are in the public interest," the statement said, "and they should be part of a program to control and eliminate pulmonary tuberculosis."

To be effective in tuberculosis detection certain administrative and medical controls are absolutely necessary, including adequate followup of people found to have tuberculosis.

X-ray screening is not at the present time recommended by the College as a practical or effective method for the detection of lung cancer.

The most effective method for the detection of heart disease is believed to be regular clinical examination by the personal physician, the statement concluded.

TB NOTES

X-ray screening for unsuspected thoracic disease cannot fail to enhance the general hospital's prestige, both as a center for modern medical care and as a community resource for better health and longer life.—Theodore L. Badger, M.D., Bull. Nat. Tuberc. A., June, 1955.

Modern treatment has not simplified the management of tuberculosis. There is need for clinical judgment and experience in applying established principles to the needs of individual patients with this protean disease. This is especially true of the many types of extrapulmonary tuberculosis, most of which are susceptible to the chemotherapeutic approach.—R. Corwin Hinshaw, M.D., J.A.M.A., July 9, 1955.

At this moment, it is exceedingly important that the decrease in the number of new cases of clinical tuberculosis evolving and the precipitous decline in mortality are not interpreted as the approach of immediate ultimate victory over tuberculosis. Such an interpretation could play into the hands of the tubercle bacillus, which could soon again become as widespread and destructive as it was in this country fifty years ago. The phenomenal success in reducing morbidity and mortality represents a battle less than half won against the tubercle bacillus.—Editorial, J. Arthur Myers, M.D., Journal-Lancet, April, 1955.

RELEASED October 3rd, 1955, a condensed report from the Research Division of Armour & Company, entitled "Survival of Proteolytic Enzymes in Various Milks" shows the comparative pancreatic enzyme activity of raw human milk and Enzylac Milk. This study was based on the liberation of tyrosine while the milks were held at 100°F. This is a technique which the investigators had earlier demonstrated to be a satisfactory indication of the total content of the pancreatic proteolytic enzyme complex.

The graph on this page demonstrates that Enzylac Milk is substantially equal to human milk in these factors.

Since it has been established for some time that the infant from birth to several months of age is low in its ability to produce the pancreatic enzymes, it now seems indicated that breast milk was intended to supply that necessary activity until the infant's own pancreatic process could meet the required level.

Blatt et al in feeding enzyme treated cows milk (Enzylac) to prematures at Cook County Hospital, have demonstrated clinically that pancreatic enzyme fortification is advantageous. Until this new work of Storrs and Hull of Armour Research Division the reason has been somewhat obscure. It now might appear that the equivalency of Enzylac to breast milk in the specific enzymes is highly significant.

The successful use of Enzylac by many thousands of normal infants and "problem feeders" suggests that enzyme fortification is of great importance in the pediatric field.

Since it is recommended that breast feedings, when possible, be continued for 6 to 8 months, it would now seem that the same term of feeding can with reason, be recommended in the use of Enzylac.

A full report of the Armour research will be made available to physicians on request.

There are few subjects on which the general public is more uninformed (or perhaps *mis*informed) than the cost of modern medical care.

People have always grumbled about medical bills—and they probably always will, to some extent. The trouble is they tend to see medical expense as a part of sickness—something that certainly gives them no pleasure—rather than the price of enjoying good health.

But the real economics of the situation—what the patient gets for what he pays—proves that today's medical bill usually turns out to be one of the really big bargains of his life.

The latest Parke-Davis advertisement, reproduced here, cites the amazing decline in the cost of curing pneumonia to illustrate the remarkable value represented by your patient's investment in prompt and proper medical care.

This message will reach an audience of millions of readers in mass-circulation magazines such as LIFE and the SATURDAY EVENING POST. Reprints, in small folder form, are promptly available to physicians on request.

HydroCortisone. MERCK! HydroCortisone. MERCK!

A valuable aid in rehabilitating the arthritic patient

HYDROCORTONE is a, practical long-term therapeutic measure in the majority of patients suffering from rheumatoid arthritis. The use of small doses of Hydrocortone in conjunction with conservative general measures will permit the safe management of these arthritics for prolonged periods of time. Such a program has been shown to provide moderate to great relief in a very high percentage of patients. In severely handicapped people, Hydrocortone plus physical therapy will frequently allow the rehabilitation of arthritics who would not be helped appreciably by either measure alone. The "quick'n easy" of Low-Residue Diets...

Starting with a can opener as key to this diet, your patient has a wide choice of unseasoned strained or chopped foods. And these diet "do's" can guide him toward tempting, tasty dishes.

Vary the texture for taste appeal-

Consommé can be served hot with crisp croutons, or cold and jellied in shimmering peaks. Puréed vegetables folded into a well-beaten egg can be baked to a puff, or molded in gelatin. Finely chopped beef moistened with broth spreads for a sandwich—mixed with bread crumbs, it shapes into patties. Eggs can be soft or hard cooked by simmering—or scrambled in a double boiler.

Serve prettily for eye appeal-

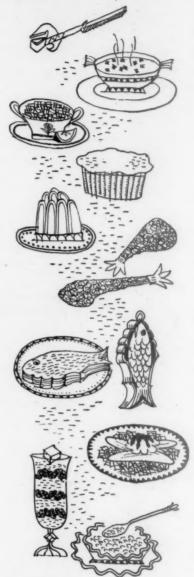

Chopped meat can be shaped like a chop—minced chicken like a drumstick—before baking. And flaked fish in lemon gelatin looks true to nature when your patient uses a mold.

White potatoes mashed with a little broth whip up creamy and light with cottage cheese. And mashed sweet potatoes made smooth with orange juice can be baked in the orange shells.

Banana split salad may tempt your patient. For the "greens," suggest lime gelatin shredded with a fork. Add a ball of cottage cheese to the split banana and top with puréed apricots.

Rice cooked in pineapple juice, water, and sugar makes a golden dessert. And for a gay parfait—alternate layers of farina pudding with puréed plums. Then put a sparkling cube of clear jelly on top.

Of course, you'll want to tell your patient just which foods you want him to have. And these ideas can help him enjoy them in many ways that are quick, easy, and appetizing.

DISCHARGE SUMMARY

On 5/23/55 this patient (colored female, age 24) underwent an excisional biopsy of a breast tumor. On 5/24 tumor was removed and patient discharged from hospital on following day.

On 6/3/55 patient was readmitted because of purulent discharge from wound. On 6/3 a hemolytic Staph. aureus (coag. +) was isolated from abscess with the aureus (coag. +) was isolated from abscess with the following disk sensitivities: penicillin, 1.5 units; following disk sensitivities: penicilli

On 6/13 penicillin was discontinued and erythromycin started in dosage of 200 mgm. q.i.d. By 6/17 the discharge had stopped and wound was completely healed by 6/19. Erythromycin was continued until the patient was discharged from hospital on 6/21. Temp. was normal throughout hospital stay.

Final diagnosis: breast abscess due to Staph. aureus.

Now, you can prescribe an antibiotic (Filmtab ERYTHROCIN) that provides specific therapy against staph-, strep- or pneumococci. Since these organisms cause most bacterial respiratory infections (and since they are the very organisms most sensitive to ERYTHROCIN) doesn't it make good sense to prescribe ERYTHROCIN when the infection is coccic?

Employing the serum protein-polysaccharide ratio (PR) as an objective criterion of rheumatoid activity, it has again been shown that BUTAZOLIDIN "...produces more than a simple analgesic effect in rheumatoid arthritis."

Clinically, the potency of BUTAZOLIDIN is reflected in the finding that 57.6 per cent of patients with rheumatoid arthritis respond to the extent of "remission" or "major improvement."³

Long-term study has now shown that the failure rate with BUTAZOLIDIN in rheumatoid arthritis, and particularly in rheumatoid spondylitis, is significantly lower than with hormonal therapy.³

Brittle, fragile or laminating fingernails are the bane of many a woman's existence. Yet this highly prevalent and distressing condition often has gone uncontrolled for lack of effective therapy. Now, you can promise these patients substantial relief in a large percentage of cases.

In a recent study¹ that confirmed previous work² Knox Gelatine was used to treat 36 women with fragile, brittle, laminating fingernails. The response was most gratifying. Except for three patients who discontinued the therapy, three diabetics, and two women who had congenital deformities, the splitting ceased and all other patients were able to manicure their nails to a full point by the time the study ended.

Optimal dosage proved to be one envelope (7 grams) of Knox Gelatine administered daily for three months. Improvement, however, was noted after the first month. If you would like more complete details of this work, just use the coupon.

Merthiolate

(THIMEROSAL LILLY)

'Merthiolate' is highly active under virtually all conditions; is relatively nonirritating and nontoxic

'Merthiolate' is germicidal in dilutions up to 1:4,000 in serum media and is relatively nonirritating in the concentrations suggested for use. It also maintains its activity in the presence of soaps. The fact that 'Merthiolate' is used as a bacteriostatic agent in fluids for parenteral administration gives strong evidence of its safety.

FEBRUARY, 1956

Colorado - Montana - New Mexico Utah - Wyoming

A PAST PRESIDENT of the California Medical and the Los Angeles County Medical Associations has spoken his mind about hospital accreditation. Dr. L. A. Alesen ex-

"Bureaucracy Gone to Seed" pressed himself so well that we believe his opinion is shared by thousands of practicing physicians throughout America regarding one of several thorns in our sides.

Millions of documents, of which not over 5 per cent ever have any use or value, are hoarded by our Federal government. They are in the custody of employees called archivists. It costs money to hoard the documents and pay the archivists. This fact is likened to hospital standardization first launched by the American College of Surgeons many years ago. The standardization was originally based on an altruistic perception that the patient's well-being warrants primary emphasis, the physician remaining the central figure. Noteworthy results were achieved. However, emphasis gradually followed the trend-characteristic of bureaucracy-and fell upon form rather than substance, and upon effect rather than results. Expense mounted and the American College of Surgeons decided to discontinue the hospital standardization program. The American Hospital Association quickly stepped in ready to assume full control in 1951. This occurred without plans to give the A.M.A. opportunity to be heard in its future program. The latter's Board of Trustees took timely action and a separate organization, The Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals, was composed and included representatives of the the American Medical Association, American College of Surgeons, American College of Physicians, American Hospital Association and the Canadian Medical Association. The physicians of America actually have only a faint voice in its activities.

All of us have been irked by compulsory attendance at staff meetings and absurd enforcement of details in hospital records. Hospital records have two justifiable purposes: 1. To assist physician, nurse, and other personnel to provide the patient with the best possible care. 2. To protect physician and hospital against unwarranted malpractice claims. Placing the diagnosis in several different locations and medication and therapy in different places, smacks of army medicine. Many of us recall that it seemed to be all right for a patient to die if his record was in good order and the next of kin were properly informed. Actually, complicated and confusing records are a disadvantage in court, for the plaintiff's attorney can find flaws if he looks hard enough. Furthermore, clerical costs may be as much as 10 to 20 per cent higher in maintaining the complicated system.

Dr. Alesen has further stated, "We have placed in control of our professional organizations . . . (persons) . . . who have no sympathy for the private practice of medicine in any of its phases. Naturally, these gentlemen have but one solution for any problem. That is the customary bureaucratic one of the passage of another law, the imposition of another tax, and the establishment of another bureau. They, like all other collectivists, are ever ready with the superior knowledge of how human beings ought to conduct themselves for their own benefit, and they are ever ready to instruct and prescribe forcibly the mechanisms toward that end. Of course, the fact that as a result, the human being becomes just another faceless, spineless, characterless robot is not of any importance whatsoever." He goes on to say that this is not to deny improvement in patient care nor that continued elevation of standards is desirable. But, it is to deny that any individual or group has the brains and knowhow to direct such a vast bureau from a central agency. Dr. Alesen declares that all of the advantages can be achieved at the local level by local staff and administration, and that the practice of medicine should be returned to the hands of those licensed in that particular State. Charting can be simplified, duplications eliminated, and expensive mechanisms now imposed by the Joint Commission of Accreditation of Hospitals foregone. We can do without the philosophy of "Papa knows best" and the apparent goal of reducing the status of every physician to that of just another goose-stepping employee of a bureaucracy gone to seed!

AN INTERESTING article entitled, "Survey Reports on Attitudes of Patients Toward Doctors," has recently appeared in Medical News, published by Ciba. Findings and con-

What Patients Think of Us clusions are drawn from a study of patients in a city of 350,000 population in a representative industrial area of our country. Results were reported to the American Public Health Association by Dr. Earl Koos of the social welfare department at Florida State University. Dr. Koos and his team interviewed 1,000 families regarding medical care. Sixty-four per cent criticized "impersonality and coldness" of doctors. It is interesting that the criticism came from people of all age groups, not just oldsters nostalgic for the old family doctor. They felt that they were merely participating in an assembly line at doctors' offices. Less than 20 per cent believed medical care is too expensive; 17 per cent were dissatisfied with the care; 51 per cent were critical of doctors' unwillingness to make house calls; 47 per cent mentioned waiting up to several hours even after a specific appointment had been made in advance. Thus the people are satisfied with the care and its cost, but criticized the way it is provided. Dr. H. M. Marvin, President of the Connecticut State Medical Society, sums it up in the following statement:

"Aside from diagnostic ability and essential kindness, there is probably no quality in a physician for which patients are so grateful as the ability and desire to explain, to answer their anxious questions fully and truthfully, to be as frank as knowledge will permit. From personal experience I know what unhappiness can result from failure to explain; I know also that few things in medical practice bring such deep satisfaction to doctor and patient as frankness."

Further figures are enlightening regarding patients' attitudes toward hospitals. Eight-two per cent think hospital costs are too high; 71 per cent thought the care unsatisfactory—"nobody gives a darn about me as a person. I was just somebody filling a bed."

This survey indicates that the average patient thinks his medical care is technically good and does not generally cost too much, but hospital bills are much too high. Physicians must respect these criticisms and change their negative attitudes, hospital confinement can often be shortened and charges minimized. Otherwise, many illnesses will go untreated and preventive medicine will falter.

The Kings County, New York, Medical Society has analyzed forty cases handled by the society's Mediation Committee of 1952-53. The breakdown of complaints includes improper diagnosis or treatment, failure to explain costs, overcharging, failure to answer emergency and night calls, criticism of other doctors, and superficial, inconclusive and often hurried examinations.

The important point is that sound public relations, as well as good medicine, does eliminate the majority of kicks!

Are You Jax Bait?

DON'T jump when you open that letter or when that man in the doorway tells you the Federal Tax Return you filed this year, last year or even a couple of years ago is being carefully investigated. You stand there-and right away you hit yourself with this question: "Why did this happen to me?" You assure yourself that you are an honest taxpayer and have nothing to fear and nothing to hide. Yet, when you signed that tax return, you mailed the original with the hope you would never hear of it again and put the copy in your files in the belief it would just gather dust. Would you like to know about the innocent, homespun, garden variety ways of attracting the attention of the tax people?

It is not just a tax return that attracts attention. It can be your method of keeping books. It may be the people around you that you know or don't know. It may not be anything of your own doing that attracts attention. Or, the government may snap at first at the simple harmless bait, and then by its procedures, snare a far greater bait and a more explosive one. Are you interested in learning what these ways of attracting attention are and which of these ways can be avoided? Then rate your own chances of coming down with a good case of "T.T.'s" (Tax Tremens) by going through this list of "Bait":

THE BAIT

- 1. Have you make any mistakes in arithmetic?
- 2. Did you claim a large or unusual deduction?
- 3. Are you claiming dependents other than your wife and children?
- 4. Is your income over $20,000 a year?
- 5. Is your return part of a "spot" check?
- 6. Has your patient been called in to prove up medical expenses on his own return?
- 7. Has an informer told a story about you?
- 8. Has a newspaper given you publicity on your finances?
 - *Attorney at Law.

Have You Made Any Mistakes in Arithmetic?

Take the case of Dr. A, a busy OB man, who had counted on a few free evenings to do his tax return. But, instead, he let it go until the deadline, the night of April 15. Apparently, delivering babies had caused him to take care of other people's new tax exemptions while he had delayed taking care of his own.

With the clock running out on the last few hours for filing, Dr. A feverishly gets hold of an adding machine and starts listing all of his operating expenses from a stack of torn slips. His office expenses total $3,600, including $1,200 for a cleaning woman to whom he paid $100 per month. Interrupted. He gets a telephone call. A worried patient in false labor. Back to the grind again. Still thinking about his patient's labor pains, he enters the correct total of $3,600 on the return but copies $2,100 instead of the $1,200 for the cleaning woman by simplying mixing the figures 1 and 2. This simple error which slipped through his fingers will be picked up by the comptometer operator at the Federal Building. as her nimble fingers punch the busy keys. A simple error paying off in $1,000,000 worth of grief.

This simple error which happens every day, will automatically summon the doctor into the tax office for explanation. The tax people would not know from the face of the return whether the $2,100 or the $3,600 was the correct figure. Sure, the doctor, after spending a day down at the tax office, after tracking down his receipts, vouchers and check stubs will eventually sweat his way out of the problem and stand pat on the original tax due with no change. But this simple error of one item caused a complete check-up of pages 1, 2, 3 and 4 and all of Schedule C attached.

The moral is: It is standard office procedure for the local tax office to check all returns for mathematical accuracy with its corps of comptometer operators.

So you had better take your time or see your accountant or tax adviser. Besides, an OB man can alleviate labor pains, his patients' and his own, by getting an extension of time for thirty days which is not too hard to get from the tax people.

Did You Claim a Large or Unusual Deduction?

Dr. B. last year claimed a deduction for $5,103.52 for entertainment expenses. He operates an industrial clinic. His practice is strictly referral. He contracts with industrial insurance companies to be referred industrially injured patients from several manufacturing plants. The Doctor makes it his business to entertain the insurance companies' key men, the executives of the factories and the Doctors at the First Aid Clinics, who regularly send the injured employees from the plant to the outside industrial doctors on the approved list. Dr. B, as well as the other industrial doctors in the area, takes these people to lunch or dinner or to football games. He invites them to Christmas parties, gives them wedding, birthday and anniversary gifts and invites the more daring on aeroplane and hunting trips. Last year he estimated all these expenses except the Christmas party. He had kept no itemized records and had but one receipt of $103.52 from the Christmas party and estimated the rest at around $5,000.00. This year, on the advice of his accountant, he kept accurate records. He marked the checks when he paid for gifts, with the names of the specific industrial clients. On the lunches, dinners and ball games where he paid cash, he reimbursed himself the next day by check. All of his aeroplane and hunting expenses at the airports and hunting lodges were by itemized charged accounts and paid monthly. Then the accountant subtracted from the dinners the cost of the Doctor's usual meals and from the aeroplane and hunting expenses he picked out 25 per cent as the Doctor's fair estimate of his own personal expenses. The net total this year was a surprising $9,502.00, a surprise even to the Doctor because he thought he spent the same as last year. His estimates in years before were actually too low. This year Dr. B's return is checked because of the unusually high entertainment deduction in both years.

An unusually intelligent government auditor, of which there are many in government service, reviewing tax returns at the Federal Building would be alarmed at the total business deductions, including entertainment in contrast to the doctor's reported total income. For instance, a deduction of $9,502.00 or $5,103.52 for entertainment against a gross of $40,000.00 would attract attention, inspection and visitation. This year's entire itemization clears 100 per cent because it is itemized and necessary and proper to his specialty in his profession. Last year's, except as to the Christmas party, is cut in half by the agent when the Doctor fails to produce sufficient evidence to back up his estimates and he is only allowed for last year $2,603.52.

The moral is: Dr. B now keeps a little black book marking down:

- 1. Place of entertainment;
- Kind of entertainment: tickets, food or liquor;
 - 3. Name of entertainees;
 - 4. Amount actually spent on them; and
 - 5. Date.

This goes for every entertainment deduction, whether by cash, check or charge account.

Are You Claiming Dependents Other Than Your Wife and Children?

Dr. C became a tragic victim of an automobile vs. train accident which claimed the lives of his wife, his wife's father and uncle. His wife had been driving the car.

She had just picked up her family at the railroad station. They had come for a short visit. Dr. C immediately became the sole support of his injured mother-in-law who survived the wreck after sustaining a fractured femur. He also became the sole support of the injured first cousin of his wife who was 22, unmarried, a schoolteacher, who had also been in the wreck. The cousin had sustained a brain lesion and required care in a sanitarium. Although the coroner's inquest showed his wife was not at fault at all, the Doctor feels morally obligated to support the two survivors, the mother-in-law and his unfortunate young lady cousin, to the fullest extent.

In a strict legal sense, the mother-in-law and cousin-schoolteacher are now unrelated to the Doctor. His wife, when she was living, was the legal link between her family and the doctor. These legal distinctions, however, did not prevent the Doctor from contributing far more than one-half the total support of these two. On his tax return he claimed these two for the first time this year, entering their names in the newly added box for relatives on page 2, claiming $1,200 for them as well as $600 for himself and as well as another $600 for his mother-in-law who was over 65. This tax return will be red-pencilled by the local tax office and thoroughly checked. Any dependents outside of a wife and child will now stick out like a sore thumb because of the new tax form and, besides, the doctor was making a new tax law when he claimed a presently unallowable $600 for his mother-in-law just because she was over 65. This over 65 extra allowance can only be claimed by a taxpayer's wife or husband and not for any other relative. Or, if the mother-in-law had her own income and filed her own return, she could have claimed the extra $600 for herself.

As to the mother-in-law, the Doctor would be allowed the basic $600 even though she is now unrelated. The tax people consider the relationship as still going on whether she lived with the Doctor before the accident or not. As to the school teacher in the sanitarium, the Doctor would not be allowed one cent of dependency exemption because the cousin did not reside with the Doctor before the accident. The cousin's exemption will be red-pencilled, the Doctor will be called into the tax office and told why. The tax law about dependents is that complicated and inconsistent.

The moral is: Dr. C now sees a lawyer or an accountant rather than going to the news stand for any of the popular "simplified" one-hour tax courses. A tax advisor would have filled out the form correctly and would have attached to the return for the first year a simple explanation that the proper relative was claimed and this whole problem of the red pencil and personal tax lecture would have been avoided. This personal note attached to the return by the accountant is effective and humanizes it. It saves the Government unnecessary checking and minimizes the everpresent memories of the tragedy. Besides, a tax advisor would tell the Doctor he is entitled to another $600 exemption legally allowable for his wife, although she passed away before December 31. He is also entitled to file a joint return and pay his taxes on a split income for that year.

Is Your Income Over $20,000 a Year?

Dr. D earned a net income of $27,000 this year for the first time. When he sat down to make out his own tax return, he was very careful to describe his first venture this last year into the rising stock market. He had purchased shares of a supposedly high grade growth company which proved slightly undesirable since it had a tendency to shrink. This he had purchased on the tip of an obscure radio reporter on a local station. He kept this stock three months. It went down five points so he dumped it. He entered on his tax return a short-term capital loss. Sufficiently soured by this bitter experience, he even sold shares in a company he had been given by his mother years ago for a small long-term capital gain. This old stock in a small private company had not paid dividends for the past twenty years. The doctor had received $35 in dividends on that single stock purchase he had made this year. He entered $35 in Schedule J on his and his wife's joint return, but found it rough going trying to fill out the rest of the required dividend credit or exclusion questions. After trying for one-half hour to figure out the instructions in the tax pamphlet furnished by the Government, he decided to cross out everything about the $35 dividends, leaving it blank, because he figured somehow that the dividends, being so small, under $50, would be excluded anyway from his taxable income. He was right on that, but wrong not to fill it out. His return as filed showed accurately the stock transactions and his $27,000 net, and nothing about dividends received or dividend credits claimed. The local tax office flagged his return because his income was over $20,000 and because it seemed suspicious to the first tax checker that the Doctor did not report any dividends when the Doctor apparently had owned and sold stock in two companies. The tax checker at his desk at the Federal Building pulled down the latest copy of Moody's Stock Service and confirmed the low stock dividend on the listed securities purchased this year, but could find no listing on the older private company or the size of any dividends distributed to the stockholders. An ounce of suspicion thus created tipped the scales of this taxpayers in the over $20,000 a year category for a tax checkup.

The moral is: Every return over $20,000 net income is carefully reviewed at the tax office. The slightest suspicion of something wrong will bring the tax man to the taxpayer for a tax talk. Had Dr. D consulted a lawyer or accountant to fill out the dividends received portion, he still would have paid no tax on the $35 and it would have given the Doctor another tax deduction for money paid to the lawyer or accountant. And probably saved himself the visit from the tax investigators.

Is Your Return Part of a "Spot" Check?

Take the case of Dr. E. Last year his return was investigated for five days and was found correct to the last penny—after three investigators had gone through his daily log entries and some 4,000 medical charts.

This year, again, the tax man is at his office to go through his latest return and his books. The Doctor's face turns pale and he feels weak at the knees. He is honest—and harrassed—and feels that lightning has struck twice. He wonders how come another checkup—wasn't last year's O.K. good enough for at least another year?

The tax man quietly offers a simple explanation: This year Dr. E's return had come up as part of a spot check completely unconnected with last year's investigation. This spot check is a scientific sampling of returns made every year by the Government. Call it the Doctor's luck—just like a lottery. Again we have something the Doctor couldn't avoid—stemming from the mere fact that Dr. E's return was filed.

The moral is: Even though you were hit last year, don't drop your guard. Always keep your books in A-1 shape. Last year's clearance is no guarantee against the possibility of reinvestigation this year.

Has Your Patient Been Called in to Prove Up Medical Expenses on His Own Return?

Dr. F is a GP and three winters back made many house calls out in the country for a patient and his family. He gave shots of bicillin and penicillin, charged $10 each time and was paid in cash. Dr. F marked down the payment in his daily log book on getting back to his office. As in many unwary doctors' offices, his assistant made out a receipt leaving the carbon copy in the receipt book and quickly crumbling the original and assigning it to the waste paper basket. It never entered the Doctor's mind co have his girl put the receipt in an en velope and mail it to the patient. It did not occur to him that he might be leaving himself wide open for future tax investigation of his own return.

This patient filed a tax return for that year three years ago, listing $400 expenses from Dr. F. The patient was called in to prove up this amount. He confirmed the first $100 by producing the cancelled checks for the office visits but as to $300 claimed for house calls, the patient had no cancelled checks and no receipts. The tax man told the patient to get a letter from the doctor and have the doctor's signature notarized to prove the $300 paid in cash. The doctor looked at his receipt book and could not remember three years back and found only carbon copies of receipts totaling only $30. The patient insisted on the full $300. The patient may well lose $270 of medical deductions and the doctor may find himself on a list for a scheduled tax examination of his own return at his office.

The moral is: Dr. F now sends receipts on all house calls. This is the ideal way to handle cash payments on all house calls, even if not the most common practice today. From a public relations view, it is a good idea to send a receipt. The receipt might well say: "Keep this receipt for tax purposes." After all, many charitable foundations and stock brokerage houses print that advice on their receipts. Why shouldn't the doctor protect his patient and himself by this simple method?

Has an Informer Told a Story About You?

Dr. G is an internist in a city of 10,000 population. Uranium is discovered nearby and the city swells to 20,000 almost overnight. The Doctor's caseload per day had been ten; with the boom his caseload jumps to forty. He is busy to the point of distraction. He places an ad in the paper for an assistant and hires the only applicant who calls. No investigation is made of her background or references. She is to be a combined housekeeper, receptionist and technician. After a month's trial, the Doctor finds his records and charts in a mess, which were bad to begin with, and had not been improved by her. He discharged her although he is unable to replace her. Each day his records continue to grow worse. The pressure of the practice is beating him to a pulp. This ex-assistant, in her hurt pride and bitterness, sends an anonymous letter to the Internal Revenue Service, stating: in her opinion, the Doctor was failing to report his total income on his tax return. Although she acted with malice and without evidence, she turned out to be right in that the Doctor had not reported his full income. But Dr. G is honest and she knows it.

Acting on this anonymous tip, the IRS makes an investigation of the Doctor's latest return. As a result, an actual underpayment of taxes is uncovered and an assessment made against the Doctor in the sum of $10,000 additional tax due, plus 6 per cent interest from the day last year's return was due, after going through the Doctor's hodge-podge of so-called records. But the Government has also sent him the second part of the bill for another $5,000 as a fraud penalty computed on 50 per cent of the first part of the bill. The Doctor feels he has done no intentional misdeed. The Government insists upon the fraud penalty because they feel that Dr. G had wilfully intended to evade a tax, by failing to unscramble his books when he should have known that his tax return, which he sent in, could not report his true income when his books were as bad or worse than no books at all. At best, Dr. G certainly does not show up in a favorable light.

Dr. G, being all worked up, appeals this fraud penalty to the United States Tax Court. The Doctor is losing time from his practice and footing a steep bill from his attorneys and accountants. Top it off, the local newspaper carries the story of his tax troubles and his patients gossip about it. The Tax Court upholds the findings of fraud. Again, the Doctor still feels he is right and doggedly appeals the matter to an even higher court, the Circuit Court of Appeals. He is lucky if his blood pressure does not go up too. The Circuit Court of Appeals rules in his favor, deciding that a doctor who is busy to the point of distraction and could not obtain help to properly perform his services and maintain his records, could not be guilty of fraud. The Court cancels this bill for $5,000 of fraud penalty but the Doctor has actually paid more in fighting the case in trying to save his conscience and his reputation.

Had the Government tried to prove negligence, which carries only a 5 to 25 per cent penalty, they might have been able to make it stick more easily than the charge of fraud.

The moral is: Keep your books in a messy state and you give informers a field

Has a Newspaper Given You Publicity On Your Finances?

Likely to make the front page is a story of a roll of unexplained $100 bills found in a small box in someone's house. Can you imagine the story of Dr. H's wife who had already saved $2,000 in cash in $20, $50 and $100 bills? And putting it aside in a metal box for a rainy day? Then this Dr. H. goes off on a two weeks' vacation with the wife and kids. Leaving the house to be repainted. In moving the furniture about, the painters shoved a movable standing closet—and out falls the box—and the money. The painters, worried that the Doctor might accuse them of finding more, report the discovery to the police in order to protect themselves. And to make matters worse, the newspapers publish the story.

Right or wrong, cash around the house is a tax and personal liability No. 1. The Internal Revenue Service is particularly interested in public revelations of this nature. Dr. H's tax return is subject to review, and a lot of time lost from his practice, on the basis of this publicity given.

The moral is: Don't keep your money in cash at the home or office. Put your money in a savings account—or investment—and keep it alive—working for you—day and night and—on vacations.

What Vicious Rumors Are Making The Rounds?

Dr. I suddenly started going to the bank every day for the past five weeks. He went to the safe deposit box section. Each time he signed a slip calling for his signature, the date and the box number. The bank clerk carefully filed each slip and then preceded the Doctor into the vault, inserted the Doctor's key and the bank key in the outer door of the box. The Doctor then took the box alone into a small booth. After the door closed behind him and as he heard the lock clicked, the Doctor opened the box and took out the papers he faithfully kept as executor of the estate of his deceased friend, a fellow Doctor. There was no cash in the box. The estate was small but required all of the attention of every estate. The valuable papers-the deeds-the insurance policies—the written proof of loss. The Doctor took his responsibility to his friend's widow and children seriously and served as executor without fee, waiving any fee under state law. In those five weeks the Doctor did sacrifice some of his energy in handling the details of the estate and working late hours. The lights burned later than usual in his office. The trips to the bank—the light burning late when other offices had closed—caused an idle tongue to wag that the Doctor had taken on illegal surgery. This scandalous charge of abortions and hiding "hot cash" reached the ears of a tax collector who called on the Doctor and received a quick explanation from the Doctor who felt he had not been kindly rewarded at all for his deeds by the irresponsible backyard gossiper.

The moral is: There is no insurance policy written which could have protected the Doctor from the common breed of viper. Perhaps the Doctor should have left the complimentary but dubious honor of his being his friend's executor to the professional talents of attorneys and bankers.

Is the Wife in the Divorce Court Telling All?

Dr. J is being sued for divorce. His wife is asking $1,000 a month support. A process server appears at his office and hands him a subpoena which reads:

"THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE SEND GREETINGS...

We command You, that all singular business and excuses laid aside, you attend a session of Court . . . and that you bring with you then and there . . . all books, records, journals and ledgers . . . as well as Federal and State Income Tax Returns . . . all for the past 5 years . . . and for failure to so attend, you will be deemed guilty of contempt of court . . ."

At the hearing, the wife's attorney calls for all the documents under subpoena and introduces each one into evidence, Exhibits 1 to 25. All of these documents are now part of the court file-an open public record and snapped up by the newspapers. His wife takes the stand and testifies that the income tax returns are fraudulent, that Dr. J. keeps a double set of books, and that the exhibits show only part of his income. The Judge orders the Doctor to pay for a complete investigation of his books by an outside accountant. Three months later, the accountant says the books are o.k. The statement of the wife was untrue and malicious.

During the time that this accountant was poring over the books, a Special Agent from the Internal Revenue Service might have been sitting by his side.

The moral is: Before a wife's wild charges can be aired and before an easily issued subpoena goes off on a wild hunting expedition, the doctor and his lawyer should sit down with his wife and her lawyer, to reach a fair and reasonable agreement for a full and quiet accounting. By avoiding a contested court hearing, Dr. J would thereby preclude any possibility of adverse publicity of what is nobody's business but the Doctor's and his wife's.

Has a Federal or State Agency Become Aroused About You?

Dr. K, on the night of April 15, at five minutes to twelve, was too concerned in getting his Federal and State Tax Returns in the mail to worry about anything else. This was the beginning of his troubles with both State and Federal tax men. He stood there in line at the downtown post office with the two returns in his hands, anxious to drop them in the mail chute. He had just finished a feverish two hours working on his Federal return and State return and giving too little time to either. In all that rush he did not realize that both these returns are closely related-as close as Siamese twins joined at the midline of the adjusted gross income. He was tired, dog-tired, as he fought his way back finally, empty-handed and relieved, ten minutes after twelve, through the traffic still headed towards the post office. He was happy, however, because he asked for a $500 refund on his Federal return.

Two months later the Federal tax people sent a pre-refund audit notice and later called him in to examine his records. They found more errors outside the return—the gross receipts should have been $2,000 higher. The adjusted gross income was therefore higher. The Doctor was disallowed the $500 refund and had to pay $200 more plus interest, which he paid. He then felt that the episode was ended when he sent the money order for the additional tax due and interest by return mail.

Six month after that, because the Doctor did not report the $2,000 additional income to the State, the other side of the Siamese twin came back on the scene when the Doctor received a letter from the State Income Tax Office. The Doctor did not have to visit their office. But he did pay the State the additional tax due them of $55.00. This additional tax was based on the information supplied by the Treasury Department to the State Tax authority.

The moral is: Dr. K learned dramatically that there was cooperation between Federal and State agencies, ready to take over when the taxpayer does not know or forgets to coordinate both sides of the tax collection—National and State.

Will a Large Amount of Cash in Your Safe Deposit Box Create Suspicion After Your Death?

Dr. L, a country G.P., born 1884, Cornell University Medical College 1907, died 1955, aged 70, of a pulmonary embolism as the result of a fractured hip. He was a dedicated man. His life was uneventful. Every day meant at least two or three late house calls in addition to a heavy office practice. He married at 68, in 1953. He left no will. It never occurred to him that the $40,000 in his safe deposit box would cause anyone any income tax problems. In fact, in his modesty, he had never explained to his wife that he had systematically saved $500 to $800 a year in cash for the past thirtyeight years, had cashed in World War I Liberty Bonds in 1931 and had received a $15,000 inheritance in cash in 1950. When he died, the bank notified the widow of the safe deposit box. She was shocked. She did not know it existed. She was in her 50's when she married the Doctor; she was inexperienced in financial matters. A week later the box was opened in the presence of the State Inheritance Tax Collector and the money counted. The Federal Government is likely to tie up the box until the money is explained. The money is an unnecessary and suspicious mystery. When the helpless widow can somehow explain to the Federal Government that the money is not unreported income and no tax due, the money will be released to her.

The moral is: It is standard procedure for the State to check all safe deposit boxes on the owner's death. The Federal Income Tax people stand by. Had the Doctor taken the simple precaution of consulting an attorney after he got married and had prepared a will showing the source of the money savings and bequeathing this property to his wife, there would have been no investigation and no problem.

Do You Pay Your Bills in Cash?

Do you think anything could ever shock a Cadillac salesman? Well, just try paying off the purchase of a new Cadillac in cash. Dr. M though he had just made a good deal. He had not quite reached 35 and was about to become the "proud owner" of their newest model. Of course, it was not all in cash—just $2,000 in $100 bills, the balance of $3,600 of the purchase price was his trade-in, a car only a year old. The salesman recounted the money, piling it neatly on his glasstop desk and with a nervous smile gave the cash receipt and the keys to the excited and happy Dr. M and his wife.

In the course of time, the salesman forgot about the whole deal. But Dr. M vividly remembered this purchase for more reasons than he later cared to remember. At Income Tax Season- "open" season for the unwary-Dr. M simply took 100 per cent business and professional depreciation of the new car. This was correct because the car was not used for personal reasons. But he took the straight line method, figuring four years of life for the new car, and divided the total price of $5,600 by 4. He was wrong. An accountant would take into consideration the trade-in on the old car by picking up from last year the depreciated value $3,600 ÷ 4 - 900) and the unused depreciation, $2,700, added to the $2,000 cash balance, for a total of $4,700 before dividing by the straight 4. What had thrown Dr. M off was the sales gimmick of giving him a $3,600 trade-in allowance on the new car, the exact amount he had originally paid for the old car.

The tax return was processed. When the new car showed up it was compared with the depreciation of last year. The tax people thought the old car was overlooked either by being sold and unaccounted for or that he was still using it for business or personal reasons, and should be explained. The Doctor was called in and as a simple routine affair was asked to bring in his receipts and check on payment of the new car. When the Doctor explained he paid cash and had no check, he now had a nervous smile on his face reminiscent of the salesman at the car agency office. True, paying bills in cash would not be revealed on the face of the tax return, but once the Government's attention is attracted even by a small bait on the return, then when the cash transactions are uncovered, the Government has a newer and better bait to be intrigued with for a more discerning investigation.

The moral is: If you pay by cash, be prepared for the awkward looks and the nervous smiles. As the Major said to the Lieutenant in the Medical Corps: "Do it through channels." Cash transactions are not routine. Always deposit every cash receipt in a business or professional checking account and all payments can be made from there.

Are You Buying Property?

Dr. N, 31, in his first year of practice, purchased a $50,000 home. The escrow called for $25,000 cash down and a $25,000 mortgage. The County Assessor, using the 50 per cent value of the real estate as a yardstick, placed a $25,000 value as assessment for the county real property taxes.

This new home was a far cry from the fox holes on the Anzio Beachhead as a medical corpsman under mortar fire and exploding hand grenades. With victory in Europe came medical school under the G.I. Bill. He dreamed of a small town practice. Finally, at 31, he was already established in a small city, had a new home, and had married. He donated one afternoon a week to a Spastic Children's Foundation and even gave a donation of $1,000 to its fund. He was well liked by the community and the home was a symbol of his inner well being.

One night he sat down to do his tax return. His return was fairly simple inasmuch as it was his first year in practice. He decided to itemize his deductions on page 3. He took $1,000 charitable deduction. He also took a deduction for the taxes and mortgage interest on the house. His return was absolutely accurate. But his return was pulled. The Government was in a fog as to the low mortgage interest compared to the high real estate taxes. The realty taxes are a give-away as to valuation. When the tax people looked for prior tax returns from Dr. N, they found none. They called him in to meet him. It was a short visit—when the Doctor explained that the $25,000 down payment came from his wife's family as a present to the newlyweds.

The moral is: Be prepared to explain the source of any large down payment in buying property. The size of the down payment reveals itself to the Government both on a tax return and in the records of the County Recorder which are often scrutinized by the Treasury Department. The tax man at the Federal Building looks at the tax return, page 3, for the items of realty taxes and mortgage interest and could then approximate the down payment. The tax man at the County Recorder's Office can look at the recorded mortgage instrument for the size of the debt and then look at the deed for the documentary stamps which are paid on the total value of the property and he then arrives at the amount paid down. At the Recorder's Office, these documentary stamps are helpful because usually the deed to the property does not state the total sales price. Believe it or not, the Government is not a snooper-but the tax checkers and special agents are well trained and intelligent.

Will the Inventory of an Estate Show Up Possible Unpaid Income Taxes?

This year Dr. O died suddenly of a coronary. He was 36 years old, a Professor of Pathology, and relied on his $7,000 per annum for his wife and family. All his life he never experienced any income tax headaches. But on his death his income tax problems suddenly came to life.

It all started three years before when he was honored with a $25,000 prize in recognition of scientific achievement and given another $9,000 for three additional years' future work in this field, receiving it at the rate of $3,000 per year for three years. He actually paid no income tax on any cf this money. When he died the inventory of his estate showed a cash sum of $25,000 and nothing else. The Government is likely to call the widow in and put a restraint on the funds. The Government is interested in knowing how a professor was able to accumulate $25,000 cash. Actually, there is no income tax payable on the $25,000 itself since it is a "reward" in recognition of the Doctor's past efforts. But the $9,000 which was an "award" for future efforts, although already used up for living expenses, should have been reported on the Doctor's income tax returns for the past three years. So, after the widow retains a lawyer or an accountant and files three separate amended income tax returns reporting $3,000 more per year and pays the three additional income taxes due and interest charges, and after months of delay, the matter will finally come to an end.

The moral is: Nothing is so sure as death and taxes—and even income taxes after death. Uncle Sam regularly checks inventories of estates for income taxes which may have been overlooked by the deceased.

See your tax advisor in the year the money is received to determine if it is taxable or exempt. Do not let the problem linger on.

Are You a Victim of the Bank Deposit Method?

Dr. P last year had a crazy bank account that took flip-flops. His trouble was, he put everything in on commercial account -business receipts and everything else. Even $5,000 was thrown into the account when the Doctor hit the jackpot on a superdooper National quiz show. He sold the two truck-loads of prizes, worth $20,000 to the first taker for $5,000 cash. The bank account and the Doctor's luck were riding high -that is until the photo of the beaming Doctor in the newspaper was seen by the local tax office. This year his return is checked thoroughly and the money from the prizes traced to his bank account. The Doctor had a "new" jackpot in a colossal amount of time spent by him and the tax people in going over his return and bank account. The Doctor was quickly informed that the full fair market value of the merchandise to him-$20,000.00-was taxable. It was a "shocker" to learn that the Government ignored the $5,000 he received from the extremely willing buyer and was required to pay tax on $20,000, most of which money he never received. He had another jolt when the tax man looked with an inquiring eye at all of his bank deposits for the year showing a grand total of $45,000 when the Doctor had only shown $30,000 gross total on his return earned from his practice. From a simple bait of publicity, the tax men were attracted to the bigger bait lurking in his bank statements. From the initial bait, a secondary bait was revealed. From a routine field audit, where the agent assumes the honesty of the taxpayer, now the past returns will be turned over to the special agents of the Intelligence Unit as a possible fraud case if not sufficiently explained. Even accounting for the $5,000 from the "lucky windfall," it left the Doctor with the problem of explaining the rest-$10,000 of deposits-for the year. Forcing the taxpayer to explain is called the "bank deposit" method. This torment is actually a part of each investigation since bank deposits are business records. This method is rationalized by the Government as being a valid, reconstructed income. Dr. P is tormented for the next few months in kicking out the phony reconstruction and explaining this $10,000 of deposits. This is what he comes up with:

- 1. $3,000 of checks cashed by Dr. P as a favor for his patients. He felt he was far more justified in cashing them than the local saloon with, of course, the patient using the cash from the pay check to pay at least $5 on his bill.
- 2. $3,000 transferred from an old checking account in another city—money on which tax had been reported and paid five years ago when the Doctor had been living there.
- $1,000 of his wife's "rainy-day" savings deposited when the Doctor's bank balance dropped too low to cover checks that were already out.
- 4. A $3,000 loan obtained from his bank and deposited to his account to pay for new x-ray equipment.

The moral is: Dr. P now looks at prizes and quiz programs on radio or TV with a jaundiced tax-eye before ever accepting them again. Dr. P deposits only his net receipts from patients in one commercial account and when he does cash their paychecks at the office, he immediately hustles to the bank and trades the same checks in for cash. When his account is low, he pays his bills by money order. When he borrows money to buy equipment, he has the bank make out the check directly to the surgical supply house, completely bypassing his checking account. When he wants to close out an old checking account, he simply writes checks against it to wipe it out without bothering the old bank to transfer the

Are You a Victim of the Net Worth Theory?

Three doctors attended the "birth of a group." There was Dr. Q, an internist, who had the land and building worth $150,000 all paid for. Dr. R was a GP with a large practice as the core of the new group practice. Dr. S, an Orthopod of international prestige, would be the "old" man of the group, although only 45, and he was willing to leave his post at the County Hospital and contribute his services as specialist and executive administrator. Neither Doctors R nor S were in a position to contribute any cash or property.

At the end of the first year, the group filed a partnership return, innocently called an "information return," but jammed full of financial information about the group by way of a balance sheet and profit and loss statement. It showed in the net worth, land and buildings worth $150,000, owned by three equal partners. The group made a total net the first year of $120,000 split $40,000 apiece. In view of the income and assets on the partnership return, the Government checked out each partner's individual return, each for the first time. The GP and Orthopod, who contributed neither property nor cash, cleared easily. However, Dr. G, the contributor of the land and buildings, received the "net worth" test. It seems that he did not have his records for the past four years. By a fluke, an aide had thrown out some of his old cash receipt books and records when the Doctor told her it was O.K. to destroy a pile of new day books received in January from practically every surgical supply house and bank.

From the initial bait of high partnership income, the Government went hook, line and sinker for the secondary bait of inadequate bookkeeping to follow the trail of wealth. From a field check, it becomes a fraud check.

Because of the spotty records, the Government applied the net worth accounting method to reconstruct his income over the past three years and to see if that income tallied with his income as reported on the returns. They asked the Doctor for a list of his assets as of three years ago and as of now and figured out the increase. Then they looked at his tax returns as filed for the past three years to see what he had left after paying taxes. Then they wanted to know what his fair estimates of his living expenses were for the past three years.

All of these figures fell into a neat formula:

CHA = NAT - LEX

This means Change of Assets should equal Net After Taxes minus Living Expenses. And if it does, the Doctor's tax returns have met the acid test.

The moral is: Keep your records intact for at least four years back—in your wife's jewel box if necessary—try the net worth theory on yourself once a year—and you may keep the tax man away.

The Role of the General Practitioner in Medicine Joday* Francis T. Hodges, M.D.

SAN FRANCISCO

A PHYSICIAN in New Jersey watched his patient enter the hospital for the following day's surgery. It was to be a routine operation-one that he had been adequately trained for, one that he had performed faultlessly on numerous occasions as a resident. In this case, he had put his patient through the required examination, studied the results of laboratory tests, made his diagnosis, and determined that the contemplated procedure was indicated, warranted and safe. He had then assigned this patient to a surgeon, who, after his own review, had scheduled surgery at his hospital. The surgeon, a stranger to the patient, had been furnished the results of the family doctor's study, a summary based upon long personal knowledge of this candidate as a person and a friend. The operative team would not include this family doctor, nor would he again see his patient professionally until after release from the surgeon's care. The general physician had learned long ago that any hospital visits to this patient he made would be on the same basis as those made by the patient's relatives and friends. The hospital staff rules stated in so many words that he had no legitimate place in this patient's care and intimated that any system providing such a place was basically a dishonest one. So, the family doctor wished his patient well and bid him good-bye on the steps of the hospital.

While this seems coldly to exclude from the medical team a member whose participation most patients feel is essential, it is the common practice in many areas of America. Where it exists, patients ask themselves what is the function of the general practitioner. And the general practitioners, trained to be doctors, ask themselves, in frustation and bewilderment, the same question. Why single out surgery as the case in point? There is a growing tendency to ban the family physician from participation in numerous fields that once were the province of all doctors, but which now have become specialties. Some radiologists view the possession of an x-ray machine as prima facie evidence of culpability if the owner is other than a radiologist. Some ENT men look upon the tonsil as their sacrosanct property. And wherever the chalazion, the Colles fracture or the psoriatic skin is tended by a non-diplomate, somewhere there will be ruffled feelings, injured toes and accusations of incompetence.

There seems to be no department of medical care that does not now have its sharply limited specialty, with provisions severely prescribing the qualifications of those who may practice it. Except possibly the making of night calls. If those who limit their practices should seek to have all within their fields cared for only by them, and succeed, the ultimate development of this would be the exclusion from medical practice of the general practitioner. Either that or his conversion into a dealer with trivia!

This is not going to happen, for several reasons. The first of these is that most men in specialties do not consider they have an inviolate right to a part of the body, an organ, a system or a disease. Most of them, on the other hand, are happy to serve as consultants, experts to work with the personal physician in the solving of his more knotty problems. They are the highly trained technicians of the medical task force. Another reason this ultimate atrophy of the G.P. will not take place is the old principle of action and reaction. The resistance of the nation's family doctors en masse is something to conjure with. The American Academy of General Practice has been a glowing example of this, and its presence and standards are well known to all of medicine.

But the prime guarantee of vigorous survival of the family doctor is the overwhelming sentiment of the American public. There can be no doubt of the wishes of the man on the street. He not only desires that there shall be family doctors, but he insists that these shall be well rounded, competent men, effective men in their profession. He see no reason why his personal physician should represent a second echelon, nor why the profession should look upon him as representing such. When I describe the sentiment of our citizens, I do not infer the nostalgic love for the kindly paternal figure. This personification of friendliness and warmth is proper, but it has its counterpart in today's alert, informed, friendly family counsellor, confidant, physician. The public will always demand that it can have such a doctor, and it will always insist that his talents and training be sufficiently broad that a majority of ailments be within his ken.

It seems common nowadays, when discussion arises within the profession, to profess confusion over the definition of a general practitioner. One will affect his utter inability to comprehend what this "rara avis" is. Another considers him an anachronism, a sport, a vestigial being. Others view him as a kind of watery whey left over when the more substantial parts of the medical milk have been skimmed off. This latter view is unfortunately fostered in some medical schools, with the result that many a good family doctor is shamed out of his heart's desire. When outstanding examples of able and versatile general men are cited, I have heard them explained away as being unusual -"really a surgeon, you know," or "he's actually a chest physician."

There is no problem of definition. We all realize the general practitioner is a doctor who does not limit his interests to a particular field. But the basic difference is a philosophical one primarily. The broadness of approach, the attitude of dealing with the whole patient, and his psyche, and the endeavor to render, or manage, most of that patient's medical care identify him unmistakably. The patient will tell you who is a family doctor. He can give you a definition.

Previously, I cited the case of the patient entering a New Jersey hospital. In my estimation, he is not being best served. You would find he desired his family doctor's participation in some phases of his hospital care, and his presence at surgery, even if he did not perform the operation. You would find the patient considers that relationship of sufficient value to desire to pay for it. You would find he resents the inference that his own physician's knowledge of him is held so lightly by that hospital that his guidance is not welcome. Of course, the New Jersey example is not universal. It couldn't be, for over the nation thousands of hospitals welcome and trust their family doctor surgeons. Hospital privileges in California, for example, were studied in a survey by the California Academy of General Practice. The situation was found to be very good, with a minimum of arbitrary restrictions. The humiliating controls exercised in some localities were not common, and those limitations that were extant were generally fair, and honestly for the protection of the patient. There were found to be few hospitals that had no general men on their staffs, and even fewer that excluded them because they did not specialize. It is known, however, that movements are on foot in a number to close the staff to all but certified specialists. In rural areas, the general practitioner fares best, from the standpoint of hospital privileges. His prestige is likely to be highest, other things being equal, and his standing as a community leader is most apt to be at the top. His patients depend upon him for more things generally. Literally, he must be all things to all men, in a medical sense, and the close relationship with his patients makes his advice sought in matters not confined strictly to his profession.

But there is still the widely held belief that general practitioner and country doctor are synonymous. Cities of all sizes, in all parts of the nation, have large numbers of busy, competent, versatile men. They are likely to be more submerged by their specialist colleagues, however, and less often prominent in medical politics. Because of the ready availability of men of high technical ability, many procedures handled as a matter of course by the rural practitioner are less often performed by the city G.P.

A fallacy in logic has gradually come to have a rather profound effect in conditioning attitudes of the profession, and sometimes courts of law. It is that if anyone in a community can perform a procedure better, he must be the one to do it. Ergo, if one man is better at a technic than all others, only he shall be qualified to attempt it. This would mean that in any given community only one man would be qualified. Hand-in-hand with this thinking is the belief that the man performing the largest number of any given procedure will automatically be better than those doing fewer. Consideration must be given to the correctness of any technic. If it is correct, how much better can it be? Once one has learned and mastered proper methods, what higher pinnacle of attainment must be reach to be considered qualified? Standards must be based upon what a man can do, skillfully, safely, with judgment-not on whether he does or does not embrace other fields. This represents one of the key points, in my estimation, in determining the proper place of the general practitioner.

Another error exists in the thinking of many who attempt to delineate the activities of medical men. This is that once a physician's field is defined, he is to be considered as frozen in that field or that degree of training and ability. Little provision for growth is here contemplated. This concept ignores one of medicine's basic premises that a doctor must never cease to grow. The general practitioner must function wherever his interest, his inherent talents, his training and the needs of the public lead him. He should not be deterred from operating in fields considered as specialties, nor should he be made to feel guilty of trespass when he does. When there is criticism of him arising from his participation in these fields, let it with fairness and honesty be based upon a straightforward appraisal of his skills, methods and judgment. Not infrequently, jealousy and economic trauma lie behind the attacks the G.P. is increasingly subject to.

There is a normal saturation point in the need for specialists in any community. There is no disputing the fact that ready access to these men of extra skills is essential to the best medical care. However, when men have chosen to restrict their practices, and have chosen their locations, they may find that there are also limitations on the community's ability to support them. Ageold principles of supply and demand apply in medical practice as in other callings. Several choices confront the men just mentioned. They may move elsewhere, where the natural demand for their services may be greater, or the field less competed for. They may create an accelerated demand for their offerings, but the possibilities here are also limited. They may attempt to alter the existing pattern of medical practice in the community by making it obvious to the profession and to the public that superior services are available, or they may attack the local general men in an attempt to win for themselves patients hitherto cared for by the general practitioners. This method is indulged in, not often directly, to be sure, but usually obliquely. The local, frontal attack of doubtful taste, has the unpleasant effect of dealing with personalities, and has a harmful effect upon the innocent by-In such instances, the modus operandi is the sudden closing of the local hospital staff. The citizen of the community then finds that selected diseases or conditions are funneled through the newly created channels, and no longer are the province of his own family doctor. Thus, by establishing controls which by-pass the option of the patient and natural laws of supply and demand, economic security is guaranteed for the members of the closed staff. Arguments in defense of this move are invariably that a higher quality of medical care results and incompetent practitioners are excluded. The subtle inference is that doctors who do not limit their practices are incompetent.

Once again, returning to the realm of practicality, another alternative is selected by many specialty-trained men confronted with the realization that the need for their more limited services is not sufficient to support them adequately in their selected community. Numbers of them become extremely valuable general practitioner-specialists. The community profits by the broader application of medical training and gains new family physicians, apparently never in entirely adequate supply. But it also retains excellent consultants in special fields. Were it not for the high esteem in which the nation holds its family doctors, faith in them might well have been shattered by the national, rather than the local, attack seen for the past four or five years. This campaign has been waged through articles in national magazines, releases to the country's press and through attempts at influencing hospital organizations. The announced motives for this effort have been the waging of a war on sin, a meritorious thing, for we all wish to fight evil. But this jousting with the forces of darkness is also an operation of a protective guild, functioning in the interests of the guild members.

It is not my purpose, myself, to indulge in any name calling or to launch a counterattack. But since it is my motive to discuss the place of the general practitioner, some consideration must be made of attempts to dispute it. Few things are more pertinent to medical practice at the moment than a discussion of the legitimate fields of activity of the family doctor. A few weeks ago, I heard a wise and tolerant top-flight specialist asked what it would require to convert the average specialist into a G.P. His answer: "A twenty point drop in the Dow-Jones averages." It is my feeling that many strictly limited men should indulge in some general practice. First of all, the habitual dealing with a whole human being and his psyche would retain for that physician a perspective often lost or foreshortened within the narrow confines of a restricted field. Secondly, in those areas over-staffed with specialists, there would be the opportunity for additional income. But, of greater importance, there would be an easing of the fictional doctor shortage. For the "shortage" is not absolute, but relative. It is a failure of utilization of medical manpower, not the manpower itself. A full work day for all doctors, with realistic distribution, would, I am sure, solve this fictional paucity overnight. The specialist who may see six to ten patients in the course of a three hour office day, four days a week, often expresses doubt that any physician can give more than superficial care to thirty, forty or more patients. He should realize that longer hours, fewer afternoons off, and a sense of devoted application stretch that day considerably. And it is this elasticity I refer to in relieving the shortage in medical service.

A wide variation exists over the nation in the customary patterns of medical care, but it is possible to form a rough estimate of the general man's activities. He does much more than half of the surgery. He delivers the vast majority of the babies. He renders about three-fourths of the pediatric care, and there are few specialty fields in which he is free of responsibility. There being no standardized general practitioner, the degree to which he enters into each specialty will depend upon his aptitude, his training, his interests and the demands of his practice. It will depend, also, upon what those in the driver's seat have decreed he may do. Since he is generally not the possessor of a certificate of technical excellence, his conscience must regulate him to a greater degree than his specialist colleagues. It is pretty accurately spelled out for the specialist what he may do. A knowledge of his limitations, as much as his qualifications, must always regulate the general practitioner. It is up to him ever to stay within those bounds. The Hippocratic oath defines the duty of all physicians to pass on to their colleagues their knowledge and skill. The tendency toward the division of medicine into guilds has given a different shading to this admonition. The oath does not see fit to qualify to which select few of one's colleagues learning will be passed on. We see evidences now that training is sometimes withheld from those not candidates for the guild. An example of this is to be seen in the growing number of hospitals not providing for the family physician as assistants at surgery, or in humiliating him by placing him as second assistant, beneath the resident. It is becoming harder for the G.P. to enhance his own skill by instruction while assisting. Many of our great surgeons so acquired much of their own skill. In those cases in which the family doctor is not the surgeon, he must be allowed his place at the table, both for the patient's benefit and his own, and I do not refer to the financial benefits. Ask the patient, and you'll find he wishes his personal physician present at the table. Surgical specialists assist and train each other in this manner. Why arbitrate against the G.P?

Continuing education in all fields concerning him must be the undeviating goal of the general practitioner. Much of the criticism directed against him has been that he consented to his own obsolescence by educational stagnation. The Academy of General Practice has sparked a renaissance by its emphasis upon postgraduate education as a requirement for membership.

To whatever degree we participate in the specialties, we have a basic core of responsibility. However rushed, however harried we are, the beginning point of all care, save the sudden emergency, is the painstaking full medical history, followed by the most meticulous examination. The family doctor has defined his place in the patient's mind without question if, when the latter leaves the office, he remarks "I have never had such a thorough examination in my life." This is the corner-stone of medical practice, and you have started upon the erection of an enduring structure if you incorporate the careful general workup as routine. It is time-consuming-then-but time and blunder-sparing later. If you refer, you have won your consultant's respect by the transmittal of an adequate report of what you have done and found.

The beauty of the general history and examination is that it requires no more knowledge than we all received in medical school. It does demand thoroughness and care. It does not require brilliance. You and I can ask, look for, smell, hear and see all that every M.D. can. If the analysis or interpretation of what we have elicited is not clear to us, that is what consultants are for. But we have rendered what I believe is the greatest single medical service, and during the course of it we have started upon our mission of knowing those people who will now remain our patients. Every person derives comfort in knowing that stored in his doctor's mind and records is a knowledge of him. And further, is the comfort of knowing that future care will be rendered by a friend.

I feel that the legitimate place of the general practitioner must be restated. Not to the public, for they have always recognized this place. The restatement must be made within our own ranks. It requires more than the hackneyed reassuring "The G.P. is the backbone of medicine." Some who say this do not truly mean it, and would privately desire a rearranging of the vertebrae. It requires a rigid Puritan conscience on the general man's part that he never test his capabilities beyond their limit. It requires that his ego must be subservient to the patient's welfare. It requires an attitude of fairness and tolerance on the part of the specialists, who must realize that there can be no general practice that does not encroach on some specialty. It deserves less of the guild approach, less of a division into elite corps. A rebirth within medicine of the feeling of identification with all of the profession is now overdue. The aim is, of course, a balanced medical community in which all men of medicine cooperate for the greatest good of the patient.

In this balanced medical community, the family doctor must have a leading role. If the realm of the specialist is so sharply delineated that all within his field becomes a monopoly, then the sum total of these specialties becomes all of medical practice, or very close to it. Who is left for the general, personal care and management of the whole human being? The patient does not want for his attending physician a man whose caliber is such that he can be entrusted only with insignificant ailments, the house calls or an occasional morsel of earthy. cracker-barrel philosophy. He desires a man of broad training and experience, with more than a modicum of technical skills. He expects all of these, and he expects a warm and friendly man to render those

Care of Postpartum Cervix*

Maurice E. Grier, M.D. OMAHA, NEBRASKA

THE uterine cervix has probably been, in the past, the most neglected structure in the female pelvis. Except in prolapse it remains unobserved by the patient, which may allow extensive pathology to develop without her knowledge. Lack of discomfort or disregard of symptoms may also permit her to go for long periods of time without attention unless she has been alerted to the value of periodic visits to her physician. These examinations should always include exposure of the cervix under adequate lighting, preferably the headlight, since it is constant in intensity.

Years ago it was considered hazardous to routinely examine the cervix at the end of labor. Only where the cervix was actively bleeding was one justified in suturing this structure and then only for purposes of hemostasis. This precaution appeared justified at the time by the higher incidence of puerperal infection in patients subjected to manipulation of the cervix following delivery. This enforced non-interference, however, permitted many patients to report later with unhealed cervical injuries of varying degrees. This unfortunate sequela was frequently complicated by chronic cervical infection, all of which seemed to be the standard findings in mothers who had undergone two or more deliveries. The lack of effective management of the problem at that time was evidenced by its acceptance as being an expected condition—a view shared frequently by the patient and her physician alike. The multipara thus frequently came to term with an edematous, chronically inflamed cervix which lent itself poorly to dilatation and effacement. In the event of cervical trauma in the ensuing labor, this type of tissue was unsuited to immediate repair, healing being frequently unsatisfactory with the constant threat of flaring a latent infection.

As time progressed, more attention was directed toward solving this unhappy problem. Mothers more frequently followed the instruction to return for postpartum examinations. Efforts were made to heal erosions and to destroy cystic areas in the cervix with the cautery. Low-grade cervicitis with its co-existing parametritis was cleared by local heat and hygroscopic vaginal tampons depleted the edema and hastened the firming of the cervix in preparation for the cautery. Extensive laceration was repaired at a secondary operation, although the possibility of injury in a subsequent delivery sometimes caused the postponement of this trachelorrhapy. This was an undesirable attitude which led too frequently to amputation or conization later when hypertrophy and cystic change rendered the cervix no longer amenable to cautery or repair.

The cancer potential in the neglected cervix cannot be over-emphasized. Most early cervical cancers will be found in a structure showing pre-existing pathology, and from this standpoint alone, careful attention to this area is justified. Unfortunately, even now some patients fail to return for routine postpartum examination or do not report for subsequent care when so advised. These mothers have not been properly impressed with the need for these office visits. A definite effort should be made to convince them that obstetrical care does not end with dismissal from the hospital. And after final release, the patient should also know the rationale for the routine examinations at periodic intervals.

Prior to the advent of antibiotics it was difficult to clear cervical infections during pregnancy. Their present use for this purpose has made manipulation or repair of the cervix at the time of delivery much less hazardous. Sensitivity determination by culture of the discharges will designate the most efficacious agent for combating the offending organism. This aid is of particular advantage during pregnancy since it permits effective treatment when undue manipulation of the cervix is not desirable.

Monilial and Trichomonas vaginitis should receive their appropriate treatment. Dilute lactic acid or white vinegar douches can be used with safety into the first half of the third trimester. The patient should be cautioned as to the need for asepsis and to use only low pressure gravity equipment. Douches taken in the recumbent position will be more effective and will decrease the hazard of contact with the cervix.

Suspected newgrowth on the cervix should be subjected to cytology studies and/or biopsy, always remembering that epithelial changes occur in this area during pregnancy which can be confused with cancer in situ. Definitive therapy is indicated only after the diagnosis of malignancy is fully established.

The availability of effective antibacterial weapons made the obstetrician less apprehensive, so that at the time of delivery an increasing number of cervices were subjected to inspection following the third stage of labor. Repair of fresh injury at this time has become the best treatment. Old cervical lacerations also can most frequently be repaired at this sitting.

Prior to twelve years ago, inspection of the cervix by our office group was done only where gross cervical injury was suspected, the decision based chiefly on vaginal bleeding not controlled by firm uterine contraction. In the past eight or nine years, examination of the cervix and any indicated repair has become routine where contraindications do not exist. It would, of course, be unwise to manipulate a cervix in the presence of a known infection or where delivery has occurred through a contaminated field. Also a patient in poor general condition, where active bleeding is not present, should be spared further immediate examination. The group not suitable for inspection, however, should be relatively small.

Certain factors predispose to the occurrence of soft tissue injury, and these when present should alert one against the possibility of overlooking a cervical laceration. The incidence of cervical trauma is increased where lack of tissue elasticity exists. This tends to be more prevalent in elderly primigravida but is not confined to that age group. It seems to be more prevalent in those who have had severe dysmenorrhea. Rapid labor unrelieved by sedation is quite apt to result in cervical tear, as is also prolonged unrelieved labor due to mild disproportion or to malposition. The cervix under the latter condition becomes edematous and is more easily torn. Cervical scars from previous repairs are prone to reopen in subsequent labors. The multipara who suddenly progresses from 6 cm. to full dilatation usually will exhibit a cervical tear dating from a previous delivery. In these patients the lack of a normal cervical ring permits rapid termination of the first stage of labor.

The question arises as to how often the cervix will need repair. A sampling of the deliveries by our group in St. Joseph's Hospital over a six months period is represented in Table 1. It reveals that about 25 per cent of those cervices subjected to inspection will need repair. The old lacerations are those incompletely healed following previous injury. The new ones occurring during the present delivery are sometimes superimposed on previous lacerations, so that a small amount of overlapping of figures occurs.

Seconal-Scopolamine-Demerol sedation is routine with our office group. Delivery is performed under pudendal block anesthesia which has been quite satisfactory and permits repair of the cervix with no discomfort to the patient. Under regional anesthesia there is no need for haste, allowing ample time for thorough inspection and adequate repair. Uterine bleeding, though encountered less frequently where regional anesthesia is used, demands manual exploration of the uterine cavity. Uterine packing will clear the field for repair and may be left in situ for a period of hours or removed immediately at the discretion of the obstetrician. Both the exploration and the insertion of packing can be accomplished under routine sedation and regional block.

The trivalve solid-blade retractor and moderate traction with ring forceps will give good exposture. We have routinely freshened the edges of the torn surface to permit the apposition of the widest flat surface possible. Scar tissue from old lacerations should be freely excised well into the angle. These precautions will give firmer and more uniform healing. We have found the lock stitch best suited for approximation and control of bleeding without foreshortening of the cervix. Fine chromic catgut and the avoidance of sutures too tightly drawn will enhance good healing. Convalescence is usually uneventful. Antibiotics used routinely earlier are now reserved for those showing extensive cervical trauma or for those who become febrile.

The results in the group studied are noted in Table 3. Those with complete healing requiring no further attention at six weeks postpartum are classified as good. Those requiring postpartum cautery or with some cervical nick still present are classified as fair. Those requiring secondary repair are rated as poor.

Two patients living elsewhere failed to report for follow-up.

Small cervical tears can be easily overlooked, especially those that are largely subcutaneous with little loss of surface continuity. Cervical injury can be easily masked in edematous tissue. Undiscovered trauma leads to the finding later of a patulous cervix with a widely gaping external os, through which the acid vaginal contents have free access to the endocervical canal. The resulting stimulation increases the activity of the nabothian glands and production of a troublesome discharge. Where immediate repair is not imperative the problem may be cleared following a subsequent delivery.

Erosions are treated with the cautery but only after any existing edema or parametritis has subsided under treatment. Disregard of this precaution may result in the development of a troublesome pelvic cellulitis.

Extensive cervical lacerations when found postpartum are best repaired at about ninety days after delivery, thus preventing the formation of the cervical pathology described earlier. The injury is quite apt to recur at a subsequent delivery, but primary repair at that time should be done. The patient should be informed of this possibility. It is the source of considerable satisfaction to find, at the postpartum check, the repaired cervix well healed or amenable to cautery. This happy result occurs with sufficient frequency to encourage the inspection and primary repair of the cervix when needed, or the freshening and repair of old cervical injuries at term.

A note on the patient's record at her first antepartum examination will alert one to a close scrutiny of the cervix, at delivery, for the old injury which might otherwise be overlooked. The patient is released when the cervix is completely healed, and the pelvis otherwise clear. She is advised at that time to report for periodic pelvic examination every eight months. The value of the periodic examination has been fully established but patients require a little indoctrination for them to realize the advantage of the regular visit to the office.

CLINICAL REVIEWS

A three-day program entitled "Clinical Reviews" will be presented April 9, 10 and 11, 1956, at Rochester, Minnesota. The presentations will be given by staff members of the Mayo Clinic and the Mayo Foundation for Medical Education and Research. The meeting will be devoted to lectures and discussions on problems of current interest in general medicine and surgery.

The number of physicians who can be accommodated is necessarily limited. Those wishing to attend should communicate with Mr. R. C. Roesler, Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minnesota. There are no fees of any kind.

A monthly news summary from the nation's capital by the Washington Office of the A.M.A.

Bills that have been hanging fire in Senate and House Committees for over a year finally are getting attention as the Administration pushes its program for broader and more uniform medical care for the families of servicemen.

A new version of a bill was dropped in the hopper on the opening day of this session by Chairman Carl Vinson of the House Armed Services Committee. It was designed in part to supply answers to a number of questions growing out of earlier versions sponsored by the Defense Department. Actually it raised more questions, which only hearings and testimony from expert witnesses and debate on the floor of Congress can answer.

The bill (H.R. 7994) authorizes, as a matter of right, broad medical care for dependents of the armed forces as well as of Coast Guard, Public Health Service and Coast and Geodetic Survey personnel serving on active duty. (The bill would authorize health insurance only for dependents of latter three services.) Separate bills have been introduced in the past providing medical care for dependents of Coast Guard, PHS and Geodetiic Survey, but this marks the first time they are brought into the same bill with military personnel.

In provision of services, the bill has no surprises over its predecessors. It calls for diagnosis, treatment of acute medical and surgical conditions, treatment of contagious diseases, and maternity and infant care.

On another point of major interest to physicians, the bill drops out all mention of the hometown medical care plan, which was a part of Mr. Vinson's earlier bill. That bill contemplated use of civilian hospitals and doctors for those dependents who were not near military facilities and who had not taken out health insurance, with the government paying part of the cost.

Another area of almost certain debate in the latest bill is the insurance features. There are these main points:

- 1. A serviceman may elect to rely entirely on the chance of finding space available in a military hospital or clinic for his family, or he may choose protection through an insurance plan.
- The family deciding on insurance has its choice of going to a military hospital or using civilian resources. The uninsured family could be charged by the military for out-patient care, and would have to pay subsistence costs while in the hospital.

- 3. A serviceman taking insurance would pay 30 per cent of monthly premiums for a basic plan covering his wife and children, and the entire premiums for coverage of dependent parents and parents-in law. Parents and parents-in-law who found space in a military hospital, however, would be admitted on the same basis as wives and children.
- 4. Catastrophic-type coverage, at additional premium.
- 5. To take care of long term illnesses, the bill provides for transfer of dependents to military facilities once they have used up benefits in an insurance plan. Or if such transfer isn't feasible, the government could pay the additional costs for private care.

The bill was introduced before the Defense Department had completed a survey of Blue Shield, Blue Cross and commercial plans to determine to what extent they could provide care under the bill. Conceivably the survey could further change the shape of an already muchrevised piece of legislation.

President Eisenhower in his State of the Union message summed up the case for dependent medical care this way: "Much has been done to attract and hold capable military personnel, but more needs to be done." He also broadly outlined administration plans in the health field, with emphasis on more money for research and federal aid to medical schools and to private research facilities for construction. With bipartisan bills along this line already before Congress, these proposals may move right along before adjournment in mid-summer.

However, Congress might decide that for this year medical schools should settle for the $90 million of Ford Foundation money being made available to private schools to help strengthen teaching staffs.

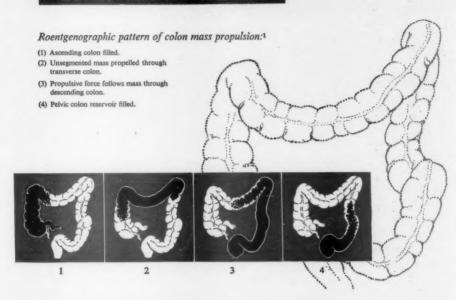

By the same token, there was some question just how much Congress would vote for Hill-Burton hospital programs this session in light of the $200 million Ford grants to some 3,500 nonprofit hospitals.

A recent Public Health Service report indicates that states are now showing less preference for "public" Salk vaccine programs than they did a few months ago. The sixth allotment marked the high-point in "public" preference. Then came a slight but steady decline.

SMOOTHAGE ACTION IN CONSTIPATION

Reestablishing Bowel Reflexes with Metamucil®

Nervous fatigue, tension, injudicious diet, failure to establish regularity, too little exercise, excessive use of cathartics—all factors which contribute to constipation.²

Sufficient bulk and sufficient fluid form the basic rationale of treatment of constipation with Metamucil.

Metamucil (the mucilloid of Plantago ovata) produces a bland, smooth bulk when mixed with the intestinal contents. This bulk, through its mass alone, stimulates the peristaltic reflex and thus initiates the desire to evacuate, even in patients in whom postoperative hesitancy exists.

Such gentle stimulation is of distinct advantage in reeducating and reestablishing those reflexes which control bowel evacuation. Many factors may pervert the normal reflexes, causing finally chronic constipation. Among them are: nervous fatigue and tension, improper intake of fluid, improper dietary habits, failure to respond to the call to stool, lack of physical exercise and abuse of the intestinal tract through excessive use of laxatives.³

Correction of constipation logically, therefore, lies in the suitable adjustment of these factors. The characteristics of Metamucil permit the correction of most of these factors: it provides bulk; it demands adequate intake of fluids (one glass with Metamucil powder, one glass after each dose); it increases the physiologic demand to evacuate; and it does not establish a laxative "habit." Metamucil, in addition, is inert, and also nonirritating and nonallergenic.

The average adult dose is one rounded teaspoonful of Metamucil powder in a glass of cool water, milk or fruit juice, followed by an additional glass of fluid if indicated.

Metamucil is the highly refined mucilloid of Plantago ovata (50%), a seed of the psyllium group, combined with dextrose (50%) as a dispersing agent. It is supplied in containers of 4, 8 and 16 ounces. G. D. Searle & Co., Research in the Service of Medicine.

Through the centuries wine has been traditionally regarded as a valuable food and medicine; acclaimed not only as an aliment but as a pleasant aperitif, whose taste and bouquet add zest to a meal and favorably influence both appetite and digestion.

In recent years, however, there has developed within the medical profession a demand for more fact and less conjecture regarding the virtues and values of wine in clinical practice.

Accordingly extensive research programs have been in progress for some 15 years, studying the chemistry of wine, its physiological action in the body and hence its true clinical rationale.

In consequence, we now have evidence to show why a glass of Port, Sherry, Burgundy, Rhine Wine—depending on individual taste—can actually stimulate the lagging appetite and digestion of your geriatric, post-surgical, sick or convalescent patient.

Similarly, there is evidence to show that wine can provide safe as well as effective sedation in many patients and thus has proved invaluable for the treatment of the insomniac, the irritable, the restless or depressed patient.

Reports on these, and on many other medical attributes of wine, have been condensed into a small, readable brochure entitled—"Uses of Wine in Medical Practice." A copy is available to you—at no expense—by writing to: Wine Advisory Board, 717 Market Street, San Francisco 3, California.

Both forms of Baker's Modified Milk are supplied gratis to all hospitals for your use.

Hydrospray

NASAL SUSPENSION

(HYDROCORTONE® WITH PROPADRINE® AND NEOMYCIN)

Anti-inflammatory— Decongestant—Antibacterial

MAJOR ADVANTAGES: New synergistic anti-inflammatory, decongestant and antibacterial formula. High steroid content assures effective response.

Topically applied hydrocortisone in therapeutic concentrations has been shown to afford a significant degree of subjective and objective improvement in a high percentage of patients suffering from various types of rhinitis. Hydrocortone in a concentration of 0.1% plus a safe but potent decongestant, Propadrine, and a wide-spectrum antibiotic, Neomycin, with low sensitization potential. This combination provides a three-fold attack on the physiologic and pathologic manifestations of nasal allergies which results in a degree of relief that is often greater and achieved faster than when any one of these agents is employed alonc. INDICATIONS: Acute and chronic rhinitis, vascmotor rhinitis, perennial rhinitis and polyposis.

SUPPLIED: In squeezable plastic spray bottles containing 15 cc. Hydrospray, each cc. supplying 1 mg. of Hydrocortone, 15 mg. of Propadrine Hydrochloride and 5 mg. of Neomycin Sulfate (equivalent to 8.5 mg. of neomycin base).

FOR FREE ENTERPRISE AND FREEDOM OF CHOICE . . .

Colorado Medical Service and Colorado Hospital Service offer sincere congratulations on the outstanding success that you, the doctors and hospitals of Colorado, have made of the Blue Cross and Blue Shield Plans.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield, under your sponsorship and guidance, now serve nearly half of all the residents of Colorado. These two plans have done a great deal to maintain the principles of free enterprise in the Colorado hospital system and to maintain the freedom of the people of Colorado to choose which doctor shall serve them.

In addition, under the guidance of Colorado doctors and hospital administrators, Colorado medical and hospital practices have established a proud record of achievement.

effective against more strains

Chloromycetin[®]

for today's problem pathogens

Resistant microorganisms frequently cause poor, delayed, or no response to antibiotic therapy. Because in vitro sensitivity tests are valuable guides in determining the antibiotic most likely to produce optimal clinical response, it is important that such tests be employed whenever possible. Recent clinical and laboratory studies¹⁻¹² show that CHLOROMYCETIN(chloramphenicol, Parke-Davis) is effective against more strains of microorganisms than other commonly used antibiotics.

CHLOROMYCETIN is a potent therapeutic agent and, because certain blood dyscrasias have been associated with its administration, it should not be used indiscriminately or for minor infections. Furthermore, as with certain other drugs, adequate blood studies should be made when the patient requires prolonged or intermittent therapy.
